You and the Law

A Quiz Show to Accompany the #JustAdulting Legal Survival Guide

Overview

This activity is designed to be used with the #JustAdulting Legal Survival Guide. The game show format provides a stimulating environment for introducing legal content and encouraging further research on law-related topics.

Objectives

- 1) Develop decision-making and critical thinking skills;
- 2) Analyze law-related situations to determine appropriate actions;
- 3) Evaluate knowledge of rights and responsibilities under the law;
- 4) Demonstrate legal reasoning.

Materials Needed

Quiz Show presentation

Pads of paper for each group to record answers

Score sheet or Chart paper

Internet access to demonstrate #JustAdulting Legal Survival Guide

Equipment

Laptop

LCD Projector

Time Required

One class period

Procedures

- 1) Ask students if they think life will change for them when they turn 18 and become an adult? In what ways?
- 2) Explain that today's activity will explore how the law may impact their lives when they turn 18 and become adults.
- 3) Divide students into groups of five. Provide each group with a pad of paper to record their responses.
- 4) Assign each group a name or number. On large chart paper, record the names of each group. Example: Group Red, Group Brown, etc.
- 5) The lawyer or judge facilitator will lead the exercise. The teacher or additional volunteer will assist in keeping score. Show the Quiz Show Power Point screen with the categories. Instruct students that each group will answer all questions.
- 6) Each category is worth ten points for a correct answer. A wrong answer will receive zero points.
- 7) After explaining the rules, begin by selecting one group to choose the first category of questions. Click on the quiz show category to reveal the question. Read the question out loud. The volunteer will need to keep track of which categories have been previously selected. Ask each and every group to record their answer on their pads in large writing. Students should be asked to talk quietly in their groups and not to let other groups hear their discussions as it could give away their answers. Ask students not to hold up their answers until instructed.
- 8) After approximately two minutes, have each group hold up their pads/answers at the same time. Show the screen with the correct answer. (Add any additional comments about the answer that could be relevant.) Allow time for the teacher or another assistant to record the points for each group.
- 9) Continue to go from group to group selecting new categories and following the procedures listed above. Keep the pace brisk and exciting.

10) At the conclusion of the quiz show, let students know that their lives will change legally in many ways when they become 18.

Introduce the new digital app and website entitled, #Just Adulting created by The Florida Bar Law Related Education Committee. Let students know this guide provides practical information to help them as they enter this period of their lives. Review the categories listed on the website and encourage the students to make a list of questions they may have for your future visits to the classroom.
