

Jefferson County 4-H LIVESTOCK COUNCIL

Dear Friend of 4-H,

The members of the Jefferson County 4-H Livestock Council would like to introduce themselves as a group of young people between the ages of 8 and 18 who buy, raise, sell and show animals as their 4-H project. These projects teach youth about the husbandry, ethics and business of raising livestock in a positive environment supported by caring adult volunteers. In addition to learning about livestock, 4-H youth learn leadership, responsibility and life skills that allow them to succeed as adults and to better serve their communities.

You might be wondering, "What does this have to do with me or my business?" As a non-profit organization, Jefferson County 4-H Livestock Council is fully responsible for raising its own funds to purchase year-end awards that recognize the talent, hard work, and sportsmanship of its members. These awards take the form of belt buckles for Grand Champion at the current cost of $125.00 a buckle. Reserve Champion awards take the form of embroidered jackets at the current cost of $50.00 a jacket. The jackets are embroidered right here in Colorado.

In return for your generous sponsorship, Jefferson County 4-H Livestock Council will provide recognition of you or your business during the Jeffco Fair & Festival when the buckle or jacket is awarded during the livestock show. So that you can personally see the positive impact of your sponsorship, Livestock Council members would be thrilled to host you during the Fair and give you a demonstration of their projects. You will also receive a Thank You from the 4-H member who receives the award and a photograph of that member with the award.

Finally, Livestock Council is a non-profit organization and your award sponsorship is tax deductible. Our EIN number is 61-1547481.

Thank you for your time and consideration. If you have any question about Jefferson County 4-H Livestock Council, our awards program, or 4-H in general, please call Lisa Sholten, 4-H Extension Agent, in the Colorado State University Extension Office at 303.271.6620. The 4-H motto is "To Make the Best Better," and with your help we can do just that!

Sincerely,

Karlee Orvis, Livestock Youth President

Sincerely,

Glenn Sanger, Livestock Mid-Manager
