2.1 Comprehension: The following text is not complete. Read the text as if you were the editor of ArtMag. Then do tasks a – d.

The stage has always been attractive to young people. Certainly many of them launched careers in theatre, film or music and some became the celebrities of their day. Thank you for the great response to our first article in this series. We were amazed by the amount of mails and letters we got on the boy apprentices in Shakespeare's Globe some centuries ago. In this month's issue of ArtMag we want to explore how careers in the performing arts take off and what is needed to be a young performer nowadays. Our reporters ventured to London as well as to the famous classrooms in New York where Jennifer Aniston and Al Pacino were trained.

Q: Hi Lucinda, can you tell our readers a little bit about your training as an actress?

A: Sure. To become a professional actress I joined Sylvia Young Theatre School (SYTS) when I was 13. From Monday to Wednesday we were taught the usual subjects but every Thursday and Friday acting, singing and dancing filled our timetable. The school offered Saturday, evening and holiday lessons, too and many of the about 150 pupils needed them.

Q: How come?

A: Well, the school's agency, Young'uns, is really terrific and helped us to get roles in London's West End shows or popular TV series. Some of my school friends acted with huge stars like Johnny Depp or Daniel Radcliffe. So sometimes after long rehearsals or late hours on the stage or on the set they had to catch up on Saturday. Another reason was that they wanted to improve some skill they needed for a certain project.

y: Last question. What was it like to act with Keira Knightley while shooting Pirates of the Caribbean?

A: Oh, that was in 2003, I was eleven and Keira was my idol. It was so fantastic to meet her.

Q: Thanks, Lucinda and good luck with your career.

Q: Hi. Louis. What does the logo LaG on your T-shirt stand for?

A: It means La Guardia and is very short for Fiorello H. LaGuardia High School of Music & Art and Performing Arts here in Manhattan.

Q: So you are a student at one of the world's most famous public high schools.

A: Yeah, and I am very proud of it. It was so difficult to become one of the about 2,500 students. I was terribly nervous when I came here for my first audition. Thousands of other "X" graders wanted a place here as well, not just me. And additionally, the film about the school, which was just coming out, increased the number.

Q: You mean the film "Fame"?

A: Yeah, I had seen the 1980s version and then the remake came out – I simply had to be part of that school.

Q: What is it like now that you are?

A: It's my dream come true. I will major in Dance. So four periods a day I spend dancing.

Q: What about the other subjects?

A: We have the full academic course load. We don't miss out on anything. Having 10 periods a day is hard, but it is what I want to do. Dancing is my life and here I can get the best education.

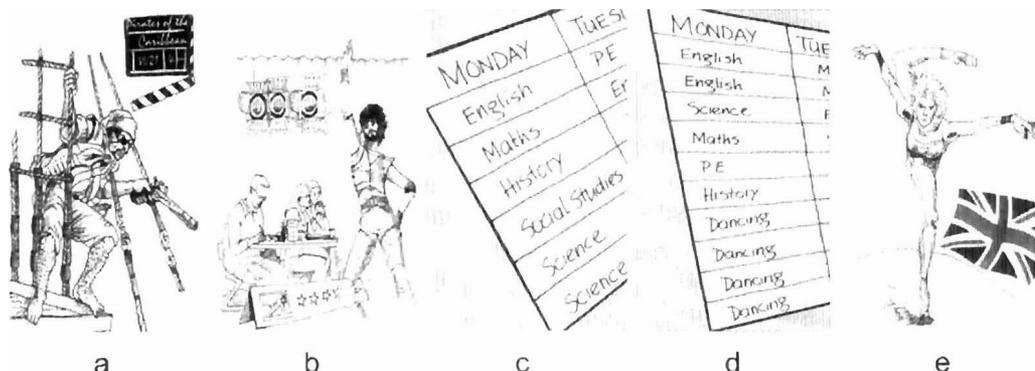

Q: Thanks, Louis.

a) Mark the correct headline for the article as a whole.

- Career tips by celebrities – do as the stars do and you will not fail
- Hard work, but fun – to become successful means to start early in life
- Two places to become a star too but only New York will boost your career
