

LUXURY

LUXURY MAGAZINE

WINTER 2015

What's WHAT.

Shopping and Gifting

Visitors enter RH Modern—the brand's debut (above), standalone showroom—through monumental gates and a sculpture garden with up-lit date palms towering 30 feet overhead. Indoors, a two-story lobby filled with art. Also on the first floor, RH Contemporary Art presents new opportunities to learn about and acquire works of art. On the second floor is the RH Atelier where you can work with the RH design team and view a complete library of fabrics, furniture, rugs, and window treatments. rhmodern.com

CFDA member Blake Kuwahara's signature, handcrafted eyewear (from $599; above) includes an inner silhouette encased in an outer shape—essentially a frame within a frame. blakekuwahara.com

For toasting the holidays or sipping by the fire with someone special, nothing beats Champagne. Dom Pérignon partners with edgy musician Björk and music video director Chris Cunningham to create the exuberant packaging of Vintage Blanc 2006 ($165; domperignon.com). Moët & Chandon debuts the Golden Globes Mini Moët Champagne Caddy (below) to celebrate 25 years as the official Champagne of the annual Golden Globe Awards (the 73rd awards take place on January 10). The six-pack of Moët Minis is also great for arriving in style on New Year's Eve ($145; us.moët.com).

Exclusive Resorts, a club of more than 400 luxury residences and global experiences, introduces the Gateway Escape Program. The Gateway card gives cardholders three- to seven-night access to the club's beach, mountain, metropolitan, and holiday destinations. Five-star destinations, accommodations, and service ($1,995 per night) exclusiveresorts.com

Luxurious and roomy in American alligator (five colors available), lined with calfskin, the Dopp kit ($3,495) from H.L. James (below) looks good sitting on a bathroom counter whether at home or hotel. hljames.com

The new Kaleidos container (from $120) from Alessi (below), designed by Naoko Shintani and made with folded metal, references the Japanese tradition of origami. alessi.com

French luxury footwear brand Galet (opposite page top left) has just opened its first brick-and-mortar store in Paris' Saint-Germain-des-Prés. You'll notice the Versailles-inspired wooden

Photos: (top) Mark Huggins; (opposite top left) Allison Gervase

Real Estate

The Timbers Collection is developing Hokuala (above), a 450-acre oceanfront property on the island of Kauai that will include a private residence club (fractionals from mid-$300,000s), whole-ownership residences (from $2 million), golf-course homesites, and a boutique hotel. The award-winning Jack Nicklaus Signature Course, featuring the longest stretch of oceanfront golf in Hawaii, will be renovated and renamed The Ocean Course. Construction and real estate sales have begun with completion of the first residences expected in 2017. timbersresorts.com

Ten50 (above), a 25-story high-rise in LA's South Park district, opens in October 2016. Amenities include The Fifty, a high-style common area; a fitness center; screening room; conference center; and one of the country's first Amazon-ready drone landing pads. Many of the 151 one- and two-bedroom residences offer floor-to-ceiling windows and private terraces. Sales begin in early 2016. ten50.la

The Stellar Collection at Mountainside at Northstar (above), a new development of townhomes and residences in Lake Tahoe. Ski in and ski out in winter; bike on 40-plus miles of a marked trail system in summer, or rendezvous with friends in architecturally stunning huts suspended on platforms among the trees. The development is designed by BCJ Architects, the firm behind Apple stores worldwide, so expect the same sleek elegance in their modern mountain designs. From $2 million; mountainsidenorthstar.com.

Pritzker Prize-winning architect Renzo Piano's Eighty Seven Park (above) in North Miami Beach is his first residential project in the Western Hemisphere. The beachfront condominium sits in open space and features a floating lobby surrounded by waterways and an ever-changing floral exhibit curated by an in-house botanist. Each of the 70 units (1,400-7,000 square feet) has wraparound balconies 15-25 feet wide with panoramic views of both land and sea. From $4 million to $45 million; eightysevenpark.com.