Mayor assures no coverup in death of vendor, no let-up in anti-vending policy

NO COVERUP - Mayor Mauricio Domogan assures there will be no cover-up in the on-going investigation on the death of a city market vendor recently. BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio Domogan on Wednesday assured that there will be no cover-up of the circumstances surrounding the death of a vendor last July 4 and whoever the culprit will turn out to be in the on-going investigation by the city police will have to face the law.

"We condole with the family of the deceased. We don't cover up whatever happened. We want the truth to come out and whoever was at fault, if it is indeed the public order and safety division (POSD) men as alleged by some people, then we will let them answer for it. But let us wait for the complete investigation by our city police so we will know for sure and not rely on second hand information and speculations," the mayor told his Ugnayan Panglungsod media briefing.

The mayor however warned that despite the incident, there will be no let-up in the implementation of the anti-illegal vending policy at the city market and other areas cleared of vendors in an incessant campaign waged last year by the city government.

Council Okays Proposed Study on Redevelopment of Session Road

BAGUIO CITY – The city council on Monday approved the conduct of a comprehensive study for the redevelopment of Session Road for tourism purposes.

The body adopted the recommendation of the committee on urban planning, lands and housing approving the measure and creating a study team to conduct the feasibility study.

The team will be composed of representatives from the city planning and development office, city engineering of-ice, city building and architecture office, city council committee on urban planning, Dept. of Public Works and Highways Baguio City District Engineering Office (DPWH-BCDEO), the Baguio City Police Office traffic division, non-government organization, business sector and the academe.

Proponent councilors Elmer Datuin and Richard Carino said it is high time "to consider the redevelopment and upgrade of Session Road to keep up with the present situation and to prepare the city for the future in its development plan."

"The redevelopment may focus on the possibility of

Senate Finance Committee Summons Abad to Explain DAP

The Senate Committee on Finance has summoned Budget Secretary Florencio "Butch" Abad to explain before a public hearing scheduled for July 21 the controversial Disbursement Acceleration Program (DAP).

The committee hearing is the continuation of the previous proceedings by the Senate that were suspended out of courtesy to the Supreme Court, which was then deliberating the various challenges questioning the legality of the DAP. The high court declared parts of the government's spending mechanism unconstitutional.

Senator Chiz Escudero, chairman of the finance committee, has directed the secretary of the Department of Budget and Management (DBM) to submit to the Senate panel the complete list of the all the Special Allotment Release Orders or SARO that were disbursed under the DAP, including "projects/purpose and the amount of the releases."

"You have been asking us which among our programs and projects were funded by the DAP... This is what we have been asking the DBM too since our last committee hearing: where is the list?" Escudero pointed out.

Escudero wanted Abad to clarify reports that total disbursed funds under the DAP amounted to P372 billion, which did not tally with the list provided by the budget department. "What DBM gave to the committee only amounted to over P200 billion."

According to Escudero, he would also ask Abad to identify the fund releases under the DAP that were considered unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

"If we want to scrutinize the DAP releases under the guidance of the SC decision, we need all the papers that only DBM can provide. We are entering the budget season and on the part of the finance committee, we are carefully studying the court decision to ensure that the next budget we will be crafting and approving will be compliant with the Supreme Court decision on the DAP," / Office of Senator Chiz Escudero/having a one-way traffic direction at Session Road with regulated parking, expanded pedestrian walkway, with greeneries and the possibility of removing the center island," the aldermen noted.

They said the redevelopment project should provide "economic and tourism benefits for a revitalized Session Road with an improved traffic and an increased pedestrian walkability. The expanded pedestrian walkway will become comparable to the best walkways all over the world."

"Experiences from big cities all over the world in streetscape improvement will show that a redevelopment of a principal street to a lesser congested area for traffic and pedestrian will give great benefits in terms of economic and tourism potential," the aldermen noted.

The aldermen said results of the study will guide the executive and legislative departments in the implementation of the development plan for Session Road.

Session Road is a "historical and heritage site of the city being one of the first main streets established and used in the early years of the city."

"Session Road has grown through the years and has become the main hub of the City's Central Business District with all its commercial establishments apart from being a favorite walking area for local residents, students and tourist," the aldermen noted.

Mother of Five Needs Samaritans

Nancy Bugnay, a 43-year old mother of five from Pongayan, Kapangan, Benguet, is one urgent reason why there should be Samaritans out there.

Separated from her husband since March, 2008 due to a misunderstanding, Nancy now depends on the pay of her two sons – Edward and Efrén – to sustain her thrice-a-week hemodialysis treatment for kidney failure.

Here two sons earn between P3,800 to P4,000 each every 15 days as bakers at Valley Bread in La Trinidad, Benguet, barely enough for their own daily needs. Yet Nancy needs at least P6,600 weekly to maintain her dialysis treatment set every 8:00 p.m./ on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center.

So her son Edward sought the help of the municipal social welfare office of Kapangan, Benguet which issued a social case study report and an endorsement from town mayor Roberto Canuto asking institutions and individuals to reach out to the family.

"She has used up her 45 treatment sessions, courtesy of Philhealth, and we have no choice but to make a public appeal through the local media outlets," Edward said.

Nancy began hemodialysis treatment last March 14 after her kidneys failed due to diabetes mellitus. The signs came last December when she felt very weak and her vision turned blurred.

Those who can offer support may contact Edward's cellphone number – 09983942768. They may visit Nancy during her four-hour blood-cleansing sessions at the BGHMC here. To bear the dialysis machines, she was forced to rent in a boarding house at Buyagan, La Trinidad, Benguet.

As Samaritans did for Janice Bobila, a 26-year old who survived brain tumor but now survives on twice-a-week hemodialysis treatment, also at the BGHMC, for kidney failure arising out of diabetes.

Her mother, widow Jovita (nee Fiao-ilan), a 42-year old laundrywoman said she is indebted to a young businessman along Session Road, Baguio city who donated P2,200, good for one treatment session.

"There's also this woman, about 25-years old who met me in a department store in La Trinidad and handed me P5,000," Jovita said. "She declined to identify herself and just said she is from Pico, La Trinidad."

Early last Sunday afternoon, two siblings appeared at her house at Cruz, La Trinidad and gave P5,000 for Janice's dialysis treatment.

"They said they were students and decided to forego with a birthday celebration of one of them and donate the amount for the party," Jovita recalled. "They gave their names as Norlyn and Ray Dean, both surnamed Junio/ God bless them, whoever they are."

Other donors may ring up Janice's cellphone – 09301224699./Ramon Dacawi.

Lawmaker: Pnoy May Have Lost a Battle, But he is Winning the War Against Corruption

"Although Malacanang lost the battle, I think they have won the war."

Senate Majority Floor Leader Alan Peter Cayetano said this as he welcomed the recent decision of the Supreme Court declaring specific acts under the President Aquino's Disbursement Acceleration Program (DAP) unconstitutional.

"Malacanang lost in the sense that mali na na-augment nang walang item sa budget, mali na i-consider it na savings na hindi pa nagagastos... But it shows that democracy is alive, it shows checks and balances, it shows the respect of the President sa Supreme Court, kaya dapat sundin natin ang desisyon ng Supreme Court," the senator said.

The Chief Executive and Budget Secretary Florencio Abad have earlier defended the controversial initiative, saying it was necessary to fast-track growth in the economy.

This, however, was criticized by SC justices, who pointed out that the cross-border transfer of funds from one government branch to another was not allowed in the Constitution.

Following the high court's decision, several groups have expressed their dismay over the President and the budget chief for implementing the stimulus fund. Some advocates also called for Abad's resignation and for Aquino's impeachment.

But Cayetano believed that instead of considering the decision as a defeat by the current administration, people should look at it as one of Aquino's great achievements insofar as the justice system in the country is concerned.

"The decision shows that the justice system works... Noong panahon ng Arroyo administration, either hindi yan itake up o patay-malisya lang," he said.

Reacting to calls for an impeachment trial against the President, the Senate leader said Aquino cannot be held culpable for merely adopting what the previous administrations did, adding that the money which was allotted to fund several projects were spent in good faith and were not stolen.

"Iba yung ninakaw mo, iba yung in good faith. Ginawa mo ang akala mong tama, pero sinabi ng Supreme Court, mali ang proseso. Agree ako na mali, agree ako na Kongreso ang dapat mag-appropriate. But disagree ako sa nagpapalabo ng isyu na sinasabing ikulong na ang mga yan dahil hindi naman nila ninakaw ang pera," he said.

"The DAP was an honest mistake on the part of Malacanang because they adopted what the previous administrations did. Some constitutional bodies and other departments also did the same thing. Mauubos ang nasa gobyerno kung tuwing merong unconstitutional, ipapakulong niyo sila, kasi ang illegal, immoral at unconstitutional, magkakaiba yun... Let's be reasonable, let's welcome the decision and implement it fully but let's not go overboard," he added. /Office of Senator Alan Peter Cayetano

CDRRMC Calls for Stronger Partnership in Building a Climate Change-Adaptive, Disaster-Resilient Region

BAGUIO CITY - Building a safer, climate change adaptive and disaster-resilient Cordillera through strong leadership, well-informed and prepared communities and united people.

Office of Civil Defense (OCD) Regional director Andrew Alex Uy posed this challenge as he led the Cordillera Regional Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Council officials in launching the observance of National Disaster Consciousness Month in a kapihan media forum at the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) Regional training Center, here.

Uy pointed-out that with the unique topography of Cordillera, the region is more vulnerable to disaster, which is why despite the cultural diversity of the people, we should think and move as one people to effectively and efficiently work for a safe and disaster-resilient region.

"Disaster risk reduction is everybody's business. The national and local governments and the private sector must work together to ensure that the citizens are ready to prevent hazards from turning into devastating disasters. Being conscious and prepared for any calamity is of utmost importance to effectively and efficiently manage disasters and reduce casualties and damages to lives and properties", Uy said.

Two more key strategies for DRRM and climate change adaptation, Uy shared are strong leadership, and a well-informed, enhanced and more capable communities.

He also challenged Cordillera local chief executives to stand-out and be models of DRRM advocacy in their locality, as well to invest more on capacity building activities in terms of equipment and manpower.

"Leadership is as extrinsic art of influencing others in achieving a unified goal. In which, I would like to challenge all DRRM managers to hold yourself for a higher standard than anybody expects and be the lighthouse of direction in molding the community" Uy said.

"I also appeal to you to invest more on enhancing your capabilities. Capacity enhancement is an important aspect of development. Let us be reminded that one's capability is clearly reflected on its output and performance", he added.

This year's observance of NDCM, adopts the theme "Kahandaan at Kaligtasan ng Pamayanan, Pundasyon ng Kaunlaran (A prepared and safe community - the cornerstone of economic progress)", which aims to give focus on the importance of preparedness and safety, to each people and every community, before, during and after disaster, in ensuring sustainable and inclusive growth to all Filipino and the country as a whole.

Joining Uy in the forum as panelists were Department of Interior and Local Government Regional Director John Castañeda, Dept. of Science and Technology RD Julius Caesar Sicat, Dept. of Social Welfare and Development Asst. RD Edna Benitez and Engr. Dolores Molintas of the National Economic Development Authority.

City Nets 104K in a Month in Peddling Fines

BAGUIO CITY the implementation of the anti-peddling drive in the city's public market netted a total of P104,000.00 in fines from ambulant vendors here in just a span of one month.

The period covers June 1 to 30 this year where ambulant vendors who are caught violating the city's anti-peddling ordinance are apprehended with their respective goods confiscated by members of the Public Order and Safety Division (POSD).

Despite the full implementation of the ordinance, several vendors still continue to ply their trade in prohibited areas such as sidewalks and streets thereby causing inconvenience to market-goers and legitimate vendors who are unable to sell their goods.

Mayor Mauricio Domogan appealed anew to street vendors to abide with the existing ordinance in order to decrease tensions with POSD personnel and urged officials of the different market organizations to discipline their members.

Non-compliance of vendors sometimes lead to heated tensions between apprehending POSD personnel and market vendors.

The mayor said, "the tension could be avoided if everybody help in maintaining order and discipline in both sides."

Domogan also stressed POSD personnel should also practice maximum tolerance and proper community relations when implementing the law.

"We will not also tolerate personnel who abuse their power", he said.

Confiscated goods are only released after payment of P1,000.00 fine to the City Treasury Office (CTO) while unclaimed goods are given to the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) and other charitable institutions for disposal.

Meantime, a dialogue between POSD personnel and officials and members of the different market vendors organizations was conducted Friday (July 11) spearheaded by the Mayor and Market Trade and Commerce Chair Councilor Elaine Sembrano.

Vendors cried foul over the system of apprehension being employed by some POSD personnel where no warning is being done before apprehension.

Domogan said, "this could be avoided if only market vendors abide by the regulation that there

"Grow old along with me / The best is yet to be," Rabbi ben Ezra says in the 1850 sonnet. That is not so here, reveal studies presented at the "Philippine and Global Perspective on Aging" at University of San Carlos in Cebu.

The elderly—60 years and above—constitute the fastest growing group today, Socorro Gultiano of USC Population Studies Foundation said. The number of middle-aged (39-49) and "near old" (50-59) folk is rising. Most are women. They'll be the largest population cluster in a decade from now.

Within this group, the poor get the short end of what really matters: life spans. Infant mortality rates among poor families crest at 40 percent. But within the high walls of well-to-do enclaves, they're down to 15 percent. Yet, "life is the threshold at which all other hopes begin."

Schooling makes a crucial difference. Infant deaths crested at 32 out of every hundred born of mothers stuck with skimpy elementary schooling. It is different with mothers who reached college. Their infant deaths were tamped down by a third. Poorer and less educated women also bore more kids: five compared to two in richer homes.

Life spans for Filipinos have been on the upswing. Male life expectancy in 1970 was 57 years and rose to 66 in 2013. Women tend to live longer; their life expectancy, which stood at 61 years old in 1970, climbed to 72 in 2013. Good enough? See that in an international context. The "UN Human Development Report" states that 2013's average life expectancy for Thais stood at 74. It was 79 years for Cubans and 81 for Singaporeans. In next-door Hong Kong, it is 83—and rising.)

Given this age-structural transition, policymakers need to play closer attention to the "double burden of disease and malnutrition," Gultiano suggested. "Majority of the children, who will become young adults, come from the poorer homes. Whether most of them will actually survive to old age is the question."

EDITORIAL

Sure. There've been greater strides in the length of remaining life among Filipinos who turn the corner of 60 years in age, UP Population Institute's Grace Cruz told the conference. "But there is a substantial gender gap." More elderly women than men wheedle away "their remaining life in functional difficulty or inactive state."

Longer life spans, over the last four decades, benefited the youngsters more than the elderly. And "the female older people" squeezed more advantage "than their male counterparts" did. Health gains translate into "longevity gains." This is most marked in the sharp dip in infant mortality rates over the last 25 years.

In 1990, 57 kids out of 1,000 live births died. That slumped to 23 in 2013. Yet, that dip will not be enough for the Philippines to meet its commitment under the Millennium Development Goals' 2015 target of 19 deaths per thousand births.

Consistently, the research data revealed "improvement in functional health status." You see that in the shrinking numbers of those afflicted with at least one difficulty—e.g., walking, feeding, dressing and bathing. "Functional health status improved across all age groups. Overall, elderly women will spend more of their twilight years in disability."

How do you explain this shift? More Filipinos are staying in school longer, Cruz said. Smoking and drinking rates have slumped too. There has been a beef-up of government services, as mirrored by the doubling in the numbers who hold a senior citizen card.

Cruz tacks on a number of caveats: Richer and better-educated oldsters "have higher and better awareness of senior citizens privileges." Also, "health insurance coverages remain low." This is most apparent among older women. A mound of "unmet needs for health services" persists.

Recent laws tried to close the gap for the poorest of the elderly. Republic Act No. 9336, for example, allocates 1 percent of government agency budgets for seniors. RA 9994 mandates automatic enrollment of seniors in a financially strapped PhilHealth program. Hence, there is a need to further sharpen targeting of services. "That would be vital to ensure that limited resources will prioritize the poorest."

Young married Filipinos value children as "investments" or "insurance" who'll care for them when they grow old. As it turns out, many of the elderly find themselves strapped as major breadwinners even as their strength is ebbing, Office of Population Studies' Alan Feranil notes.

When parents work overseas, the elderly are all too often roped in as surrogate parents to their grandchildren. (In 2013, there were 1.8 million Filipinos who worked abroad. Their remittances grew by 8.5 percent.) Still, far too many of the elderly are abandoned by their children hard-pressed to support their own families. Many OFWs "become strangers to their children."

Feranil earlier co-authored a study on "Dietary patterns and depressive symptoms among Filipino women." "Diets influence the biology underpinning depressive illnesses" among Filipinos, the study reports. This raises concern as more shift "from traditional to western diets, typical of a country in nutrition transition."

From the Research Institute for Mindanao Culture, Dr. Ma. Teresa Sharon Linog analyzed the "prevalence of malnutrition and other preventable risk factors" among the elderly in Cagayan de Oro City. Among other things, she reported that poverty resulted in high nutrition risk among 53 out of every hundred respondents.

Wives give more of the limited food to their spouses. Majority have "two or three medical" concerns, including teeth loss and oral lesions. "Deterioration of mental health is increasingly marked."

ADVOCACY MINDANOW

GOING "GREEN" IN BAGUIO CITY

BY: JESUS DUREZA

Over the weekend, I travelled by bus for the first time to Baguio City, the country's summer capital 5,000 feet up in the sky for a "green" event. No, definitely not the "green" you naughty guys have in mind.

The last time I was up there was during Holy Week several years ago in 2008 during President GMA's time when I was press secretary. Cabinet members would join the president during the annual "retreat" for some much-needed meditation. All my life, before working in Malacanang, it was an exclusive, bonding time with family usually in the farm or in our hideaway in the mountain. I had to give that up when I worked for the president. I have not returned to Baguio since for about 6 years now.

BETTER THAN FLYING —I was back there, this time for a forum on "sustainable construction reporting" with the Philippine Press Institute and HOLCIM, Inc. attended by Luzon and Manila journalists. I was really planning on driving my car from Manila upon learning that Loakan Airport had been closed for a long time. But at the last minute, I was advised by my daughter Ning that it would be better taking the passenger bus. She was right. The 4-hour bus rides from Cubao in Quezon City to Baguio via the Marcos highway and back were totally pleasant. (Kennon Road is open only to light vehicles.) Victory Liner's "de luxe" coach had airplane-type reclining seats, free wifi and TV, free snacks and bottled water on board with a uniformed attendant (like airline stewardess) with a cubicle-type restroom situated at the middle section. And unlike plane flights, the bus schedules were on the dot. I would have spent about P5,000 for gasoline alone if we drove up. Passenger fare was only P750 one way. While in Baguio, I missed the shivering cold temperature unlike in past years — due to global warming or climate change, maybe. But the populous mountainside looked as if it already exceeded its "carrying capacity" of development.

DON'T BAN PLASTIC — Now back to being "green". I listened intently to the resource persons notably President Mike Guerrero of the Green Architecture Advocacy Phil. who surprised us with some "back to basics" principles that we, more often than not, took for granted. For example, he shook me with the proposition that non-biodegradable plastic bags should NOT be replaced by paper bags, as now being advocated almost everywhere. He said that paper bags are usually single-use items unlike plastics that are more durable. Moreover, paper bags are made from lumber and wood thus endangering our already disappearing trees and depleted, thinning forests. But plastics can be recycled and can be used for a myriad of other things. SO, THE ISSUE SHOULD NOT BE ABOUT PLASTIC PER SE BUT ITS DISPOSAL. Just because plastics clog our waterways and sewage systems should NOT be a reason to BAN them. The advocacy shift should be on WHERE we bring them or how we PROPERLY DISPOSE of them to prevent the negatives. It is in mishandling them rather than its use that should be the object of our campaign, if not anger. Just plain "common sense", right? Now, after hearing that, I've changed my mind about pushing for paper bags. Someone whispered that some enterprising exporter must Facebook is definitely one of the great websites that help a lot of us stay in touch with friends, relatives, classmates etc., although the uses and benefits of Facebook as a social networking website has seemd to have expanded and evolved beyond the wildest dreams of its creators. However, I seriously doubt if one of the intents and purposes of the social networking site is for use of selective, relentless, one-way political black propaganda purposes. In fact, as explained to me, there are mechanisms in place within Facebook to address those persons who use it in an abusive manner, and we are looking into this and we hope that whatever sanctions FB may take will not just be a mere 30-day suspension but something more firm. We will let you know developments on this in succeeding column.

Let us take for example the usage of Ms. Grace Bandy, based on what I have seen at her website on the part of her "facebook accomplishments," and based also on a CD sent to our office by a certain Remando Martinez, it appears that Ms. Bandy is engaged in selective, one-way, non-stop bashing of the Mayor and the Congressman. If I were to interpret this non-stop selective bashing, it would appear that she has an axe to grind against these officials. Why so? What could possibly be her reason(s) for doing so? To make matters worse, I was informed and as I understand, there is documentation on this, when another party posts a contradictory comment or even merely posts a question at her FB page which is not to her liking, she immediately will erase and block that person from being able to ever post in her FB page. My God, this is crazy! Can you imagine yourself having to be up on your feet and the time one has to spend in monitoring his/her FB page?!? Those involved in tri-media know that one is accountable for whatever one writes or says, and therefore one could be liable for a charge of libel, among others. However, you may say that we already have an anti-cybercrime act/law and that being charged and/or convicted of libel committed through the Internet is now possible. Well, libel via FB, this I gotta see. Let's see if you can get Mark Zuckerberg or any of his staff to testify for or against you! One thing I always tell others, and which I practice and adhere to, is the saying "I may not agree with what you have to say, but I will defend your right to say/write it."

Unfortunately, what Ms. Bandy appears to be doing in her FB is nothing but sheer, relentless non-stop one way black propaganda without allowing her subjects and/or friends/supporters of her subjects the benefit of free and independent comments. In fact, if Ms. Bandy truly believes in all the stuff she is posting, she should have no fear with counter comments and/or rebuttals, and she should even encourage the posting of such non-conforming comments/reactions! I am also starting to wonder if Ms. Bandy and her usual band of motley FB supporters who happen to be quick to click the "like" button or dish out incendiary or discriminatory comments are living in a world of DELUSSION (let us spare each other the usual psych interpretation, as just recently, studies have shown that those fond of engaging in selfies have a psych problem), or are they simply there to like or comment for the heck of it? Thank God, at least I can safely

With the little pension money he got from the company where he toiled for 36 years, Mang Rodrigo, with his wife Tonya hardly agreeing, opted to buy and operate a Taxi service so he could support his family after retirement in 1997.

For a while, Mang Rodrigo thought that buying a taxi was a good decision after all. With himself driving the taxi six days a week, he not only sustained the material needs of the family, he found easy time supporting his two daughters starting then in college. He even had extra pennies to treat his family on weekends which did not happen before. Until...after two years when the franchise of his taxi was expiring and he had to renew it.

To his great surprise and dismay, he found out from the LTRFB that what he actually bought in 1997 was not a taxi franchise but a franchise for garage service or what is called now as vehicle for hire.

He could not believe it! How did that happened? He bought the franchise through the Director himself! How come? Following is the story of Mang Rodrigo's travails.

Let us look at possible motives of Ms. Bandy in her relentless non-stop bashing. It is a common knowledge that she has been very supportive of the previous candidacy of Atty. Jose "Jomol" Molintas. I don't buy the idea (as suggested by some) that Ms. Bandy is simply sour graping from the numerous election losses of her benefactor. While she had informed me in the past that she has a debt of gratitude towards Atty. Jomol as he had represented her brother (pro bono) in some kind of a custody case or visitation rights case involving the daughter of her brother, her niece (her unica jiha pamangkin), hence the debt of gratitude. While I can understand utang na loob as they say "gratitude has the highest command," however, the relentless bashing by Ms. Bandy appear to be misplaced and speak of actions other than utang na loob. I also do not buy the suggestion of some that there is a more personal angle to it, what do they mean by personal? Although whether there is a more personal dimension to it or not, I would rather not comment until such time that there is reasonable showing of such, other than wild soap opera type speculation! There is also this idea floated that she is being maintained by the loosing former Congressman Bernardo Vergara through his PR man Ferdie Balanag. This could be possible, but it just doesn't seem to fit. As I recall, Ms. Bandy has also been, for a time, very critical of the former Congressman. However, I do wonder as to how come she stoped being critical. Is it simply because the former congressman lost and is now a "former congressman" so whatever critical postings she had been dishing out are now to be considered moot?

At any rate, I have now said my part in relation to the FB escapades of Ms. Bandy and also with her alleged website and whatever are the reasons for Ms. Bandy in engaging in such. I hope she will realize that Facebook may not be the place to do it. However, should she insist on continuing with her Facebook selective bashing in a no-holds-barred (one-way) expression, then she should woman-up (the opposite of man-up) and do her bashing in a manner where her subjects or friends/supporters of her subjects will be given the benefit of an open (uncensored and un-edited) reply.

Maraming nag Fe-Facebook - Ubod ang BOBO !?! Sa kasalukuyan mayroon tayong tinatawag na quad-media at hindi lang tri-media sapagkat nadagdagan na tayo ng internet media sa ngayon, samantalang nuong araw ay radio, tv at print lamang tayo ngunit sa kasalukuyan ay mayroon na tayong internet media kung saan kasapi na rin dito ang sikat na sikat na nakaugalian na natin na Facebook. Para sa akin ay maganda ang facebook sapagkat na lalaman ko ang latest sa aking mga kamag-anak, mga ka-klase, mga kaibigan na mga nasa ibang lugar sa pilipinas o sa ibang bansa , ngunit never kong ginamit ang aking facebook para manira ng aking kapwa, lalo na at kung gagamitin ko ang facebook para paninira ng mga politiko ay yuon ang hindi ko gagawin sapagkat dala ko naman ang aking BAYAG at kung kailangan kong bumatios ay gagamitin ko ang tradisyonal na tri-media para ng sa ganoon ay mabigyan ng pag kakataon ang aking binabatikos na rumisponde o sumagot at hingil na rin sa sinasabing public accountability ko bilang isang responsableng kolumnista . Hindi katulad ng mga ibang nag tatrabaho bilang PR o Public Relations ng mga pol-politiko kung saan ginagamit nila ang facebook para bumatikos ng walang awat at walang hangganan. Mabuti sana kung sa kanilang pagbabatikos ay tinatangap din nila ang kontra reaksiyon o kasagutan ng ibang mga suporters ng kanilang binabatikos para sana ay at least marinig at mabigyan ng pagkakataon na mapakingan ang panig

CLARIFYING PERCEPTIONS ON SC DECISION
ONDAP: Okay, okay, okay, let us all get this very clearly about the Supreme Court decision on the "disbursement acceleration program" or DAP of President Aquino. First, the court recognized that DAP is legal and in accord with the 1987 Constitution. The court even conceded that the President has flexibility in spending government funds to stimulate the economy.

Second, the tribunal also recognized that Aquino's use of DAP resulted in quantifiable economic benefits to the nation. But, the Court said, Aquino's having given money belonging to the Office of the President to another branch of government, which is the legislature, violated the 1987 Constitution, because of the prohibition in the Charter against using money allocated to one branch for the benefit of another branch.

Then, the Court also ruled that some of the money used by Aquino for his DAP were illegally collated, because they did not come from "savings" of agencies under the executive department. In layman's language, the tribunal noted that Aquino's classification of the money taken from the different offices of the executive department as "savings" was not legally correct, because they were not savings at all.

In the interest of fair play, given that the Baguio Congressman Nicasio Aliping, Jr. had recently been subjected to various forms of black propaganda and negative (unspeakable/un-printable) attacks by certain persons whose intent and purpose appear to be politically motivated, we have opted to print in its entirety the speech delivered by the Honorable Aliping containing his 1st Year accomplishments. Some of us have perhaps forgotten that in a vibrant democracy as ours, we are all presumed to be innocent until proven guilty! You be the judge and see for yourself if your Representative is not doing enough!!!- The Junction Acting OIC

THE FIRST YEAR ACCOMPLISHMENT REPORT

(1st Regular Session, 16th Congress)

Congressman Nicasio M. Aliping, Jr.

Lone District, Baguio City

01 July 2014

Your humble public servant, has just completed his first year in office as a member of the House of Representatives.

Today, I stand before you to present my accomplishments as your congressman in the year just passed.

Allow me to start by quoting from the Remarks delivered on 11 June 2014 by Speaker Feliciano Belmonte, Jr. at the adjournment sine die of the 1st Regular Session, 16th Congress. The Speaker stated that "the First Regular Session of the 16th Congress bore witness to a House that is at work despite the difficult challenges we faced."

Enumerating the accomplishments of the House of Representatives in the wake of the PDAF controversy, the Speaker went on to declare that "no scandal or controversy should keep us from performing our functions and duties as duly elected representatives of our constituencies."

Indeed, as a first-term congressman in our neophyte year, the 1st Regular Session was particularly difficult and challenging. Nonetheless, I worked doubly hard to acquaint myself with the rules of procedure and the entire legislative process. I constantly balanced my hectic schedules to enable me to attend plenary sessions and hearings conducted by the 11 committees to which I belong as a member for the majority. I actively participated in the proceedings, both in the committees and in plenary. And, most of all, I endeavored to gain the support of my peers especially the seasoned legislators in the halls of Congress.

After all, that is merely, what is expected of me as your elected congressman. My commitment to you at the beginning of my term, is that I will perform my duties and functions as legislator with diligence and dedication. True to this commitment, I take pride in reporting to you that I have performed remarkably well.

LEGISLATION

The Congress of the Philippines has passed during the 1st Regular Session a total of 13 measures. Eight of them are now Republic Acts (RA Nos. 10632 to 10639) while five are awaiting the signature of the President.

Included among those passed by Congress is the measure, entitled "AN ACT PRESCRIBING THE PRINTING OF GRAPHIC HEALTH WARNINGS ON TOBACCO PRODUCTS" wherein your representative is a principal author. As author of HB 2848, I was elected as a member of the House contingent to the Bicameral Conference Committee whose report was ratified by both the Senate and the House of Representatives on 11 June 2014.

I was also a co-author, as member of the Committee on Appropriations, of HB 2630, entitled "AN ACT APPROPRIATING FUNDS FOR THE OPERATION OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES FROM JANUARY ONE TO DECEMBER THIRTY-ONE, TWO THOUSAND AND FOURTEEN, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES" which is now Republic Act No. 10633.

I, as well authored HR 766, entitled "A RESOLUTION URGING THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE TO ESTABLISH A REGIONAL PROSECUTION OFFICE FOR THE CORDILLERA ADMINISTRATIVE REGION IN BAGUIO CITY". It was adopted without amendment by the House of Representatives on 02 June 2014 as House Resolution No. 99.

Also during the plenary session of 26 May 2014, I delivered a privilege speech regarding the 2014 version of the Ambient Air Pollution Database released by the World Health Organization, not so much as to denounce the negative reports but as a call to action for a more proactive response. The speech was referred to the Committee on Rules pending its 1st Reading.

A number of other measures of national import and local significance sponsored or authored/co-authored have already been approved by the House on 3rd Reading or at least approved at the committee level. About a third of the 16 measures I authored, were approved while almost half of the 54 measures I co-authored were approved. These are, as follows:

"The incident is not an excuse for the vendors to continue peddling along the sidewalks. We will continue to ban vendors along the sidewalks because that is the law and we want to maintain order at our city market. So I hope everybody will cooperate," the mayor said.

He urged the legitimate vendors and market-goers to also help in the implementation of the anti-illegal policy by discouraging itinerant vendors from utilizing their spaces and by not patronizing their wares.

The mayor said the POSD men will continue with their task even as they will continue to be reminded to exercise their functions with maximum tolerance and by observing the proper rules of engagement.

He said the disbandment of the POSD, as raised by some quarters following the incident, is not the solution.

"If it will come to that point, then only those who are guilty will be removed because there are those POSD members who are good in their job and we have to admit that we need our POSD to maintain the order that we worked hard for at our market. I think many people appreciate the fact that our market is now more orderly and they would not want to see the market to go back to its previous state," he said. /A Refuerzo

"The POSD is there to implement the ordinance, if you are caught blatantly disobeying the law then there would be a problem," he said.

The mayor also ordered the POSD men to observe maximum tolerance in dealing with ambulant vendors and to inventory in detail goods which are being confiscated to avoid complications.

"This ordinance was never intended to stop vendors from doing their business, we want you to practice your livelihood in a legal way that is why we have designated areas where you can ply your trade," Domogan stressed. /paul rillorta esteem, her philosophy being that women would marry anyway and so their places should be at home to rear and care for children.

"Paano ngayon tayo, wala ka ng trabaho. Kaya pa ba nating paaralin and mga anak mo?" Tonya would pester him nightly since he retired.

"Kaya ko pang magmaneho," Mang Rodrigo would gallantly assure his wife. "pwede pa akong makimaneho sa taxi, ngunit mas maganda sana kung sarili natin ang taxi. Mas malaki raw ang kita." He tried to convince his wife who was not sold to the idea of withdrawing the pension money from the bank which is reserved for future contingencies.

"Pero, hindi ka nakakasiguro sa taxi. Baka bulok ang mabili mo di problema pa iyon. Saka, sabi ni bayaw mahal daw ang prangkesa ng taxi."

"Mababawi rin natin 'yon. Isa pa, mekaniko rin naman ako, kaya nating pangalagaan and taxi. Saka wagon ang bibilhin nating taxi para pati kamaag-anak natin ay pwedeng sumakay." That did it!

"Sige na nga, basta bahala ka." Tonya finally said.

Mang Rodrigo was early at the office of LTFRB in San Fernando. He knew beforehand that issuance of new taxi franchise was closed because of the moratorium. He was also told that the Regional Director was the right person to approach. His kumpare advised him so, and so he followed him.

The Director was indeed approachable and exceedingly polite for his rank. When told of Mang Rodrigo's intention, he summoned to his room somebody from the outside and in his presence and hearing, the Director said: Nolan, may available ka bang taxi franchise diyan? Kung mayroon, tulungan natin si Mang Rodrigo. Bagong retire siya at kailangan pa raw na kumayod."

The man showed a copy of the franchise to the Director after which the Director nodded: "Ok yan." They then went out to a Notary Public where they executed a Deed of Sale to consummate the agreement. Thereafter, Mang Rodrigo handed the consideration amounting to P75T which included the cost of franchise and the transfer of the same to his name.

He was jubilant when he mentioned the franchise he bought to his wife. Tonya could not help but be happy likewise, his husband would have his own taxi at last. She even went with Mang Rodrigo to select and to buy the wagon to be substituted as taxi in the franchise. In their joy at having a taxi, the couple momentarily forgot that they were withdrawing from the bank all the money saved by Mang Rodrigo out of his toiling in the mines for 36 years.

What would he do now? He had to stop operations of his taxi because the franchise has expired and even if it could be renewed, it would no longer be a taxi but a garage service. This service does not earn Mang Rodrigo married late in life. Either he willed it that way or it just happened. Whatever the cause was, he could not have probably avoided it. The circumstances were just beyond his control. It was his fate.

For, very early in youth, Mang Rodrigo had already been working to the bone to help his parents raise a family of six. He was the eldest. It did not matter to him therefore that he was not sent to school like his two brothers and a sister. He was glad enough just seeing them finished high school and possibly, vocational courses at least. He felt no pangs nor qualms about his situation.

He had been working in the mines for 20 years when finally he married, and raised his own family. He was 46. Not having gone to school at all or even sent to any formal training by the company like his contemporaries, he did not move up in his position. He remained the ordinary wage earner that he was from the start until his second retirement at age 66 in May 1997.

In 1997, Mang Rodrigo's two daughters just graduated from high school and both would enroll in college soon. Even as he retired, Mang Rodrigo was determined that his children should attain the education that eluded him. This despite his wife's lack of as much as a taxi. How could he manage to support his children in college?

Earlier, he thought his travails were finally over. Now this. How did this happen to him? Why him again? He tried to grope for answer from above but, as usual, none ever came from above to explain his travails.

What consoled him momentarily, if he could call it that, was his discovery that he was not alone after all in his misery. There were many others who invested money in similar manner and their franchises were facing threat of revocation because they were either wrong franchises they bought like his or their franchises were being claimed by others having been fraudulently granted by the Director under cases of double or multiple sale. But unlike them who could afford to bail themselves out from their problems because they had the means, Mang Rodrigo was financially drained. He could not hire the lawyer who could reportedly intercede in his behalf for his problem because the lawyer's asking fee was quite prohibitive. Where would he get the P50T being asked for?

After much thought, it dawned on him that he had a cousin who was a judge in La Union. In his uncultured mind, a judge is a judge, he exerts great social pressure and influence. Maybe, as judge, his cousin would be able to convince the new Director to reconsider his plight.

He looked up again for succor. It was a habit formed by the many travails experienced in the past. He hoped that mercy, if it did not come before, would finally fall like rain this time. Amen.

albeit illegally and unconstitutionally, Aquino the power to transfer money of the executive department to senators who voted to impeach Renato Corona through the General Appropriations Acts (GAAs) of 2011 and 2012.

The tribunal said in the concluding paragraphs of its Decision on the DAP that the "doctrine of operative facts"—which simply means that the effects of an illegal act can no longer be undone—does not absolve or exempt from criminal liability the "authors, proponents and implementors" of the DAP, unless, in the cases that will (or must) be filed against them, they can show "good faith".

Now, with the foregoing, it is not difficult to see that "good faith" can never be a defense available to Aquino, Abad, and the lawmakers who obviously conspired with them to give birth to DAP. Why? Simply because Aquino, Abad, and these lawmakers knew, when they plotted to put up the DAP to allow Aquino to collate money from the executive department to be given to senators and lawmakers in the Corona impeachment, that what they were doing was illegal.

PNOY, ABAD, KNEW OF ILLEGALITY OF DAP FOR LAWMAKERS: Why am I saying that all of them knew, from the start of their plans to create the DAP, that what they were doing was illegal? Well, the crafting and enactment of the GAAs of 2011 and 2012 gave them away. The fact is that, these two budgetary laws confirmed that our officials knew that it was against the Constitution for Aquino to be using executive funds for the legislative.

They knew that under the prohibition in the Constitution which Aquino's mother, Cory, passed in 1987, they cannot give executive funds to the lawmakers involved in the Corona impeachment. So, they came up with two sections in the GAAs of 2011 and 2012 precisely to authorize Aquino to use executive funds for the legislative. The Supreme Court struck down these two sections in the GAAs as unconstitutional.

Clearly, therefore, there can be no good faith by Aquino and his cohorts here. They knew they were not allowed to transfer funds from the Office of the President to the House of Representatives and the Senate because the Constitution disallows that practice. Yet, not only did they proceed with that transfer; they likewise tried to cover their tracks and protect their backs by inserting equally illegal sections in the GAAs.

have planted this idea of shifting to paper bags to make oodles of money in the process. And our policy makers swallowed this hook line and sinker. I wonder.

SUSTAINABILITY — Of course, core of the discussions is on climate change and the need to survive due to global warming. And how "mitigation" (reducing the risks) and "adaptation" (adjusting to realities) have a fine, thin line of difference. Mitigation is a proposition that is "too late and too little", our resource person said. Perhaps we should work on "adaptation". I also got a little new provoking thought about "resiliency" or our own people's absorbing the shocks and still surviving and moving on. In fact this is touted as a good thing to be proud of. On close look, resiliency is NOT that desirable or some quality we should be proud of. It may connote something bad. Indeed, resiliency in our present context is all about not adjusting but just surviving. Being resilient is therefore not always desirable because it merely en-amors our people but does not encourage them to improvise and craft new ways and devices.

Adaptation is perhaps more apt. Like the simple idea of returning back to the second floor of houses with posts or on stilts to counter flooding; or a return to the more adaptable horse-drawn calesa instead of stallable cars during floods. Or perhaps a modernized version jetski-type tri-cycles to navigate rising waters.

I was also fascinated at how the buzzword "sustainable development" was defined. It was simply defined as "an instinct for survival." Another discussant, Baguio Water District General Manager, Engr. Salvador Royeca described it as "meeting the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs".

Dads Back Barangay Opposition to BCDA Water Permit Application

BAGUIO CITY – The city council supported Greenwater Village barangays' opposition to the water application of the Bases Conversion and Development Authority (BCDA) over the spring being maintained by the residents saying it will rob residents of their water source.

The body approved Resolution No. 162 urging the National Water Resources Board (NWRB) not to implement the notice of water permit application dated April 28, 2014 of the BCDA. It will also initiate the filing of appropriate formal protest before the board.

The aldermen said the spring water has been developed, protected and maintained by the barangay residents since the 1950s and has served as their water source since then with the residents maintaining their own pipelines from the water separator to their homes.

The body also said that the BCDA's application over the spring violates the conditionalities posed by the city in the development of Camp John Hay particularly the third condition which mandates the BCDA to provide additional water supply in the zone to be sourced from outside the city and to ensure that water use within the zone will in no way deplete or minimize the water supply in the city.

Greenwater barangay officials were informed by the NWRB of the BCDA's application last June 25.

The body noted that a notice of posting of water permit application was also issued by the NWRB on April 28, 2014 for posting in the barangay bulletin board for 30 days.

The council earlier adopted Resolution No. 81 series of 2014 asking the NWRB to make the city government as the automatic intervenor in all applications for water permits in the city to protect the city's water sources.

"As per mandate of the Local Government Code of 1992, it is the duty and responsibility of the Local Government Unit to promote and protect the health and general welfare of its people and to provide a healthy environment for its constituents thus the city will initiate the filing of the appropriate formal protest on the matter before the (NWRB) in coordination with the affected

Coffee Growers Will Soon Benefit for the Compensation of Their Pro-Environment Services.

Recognizing the role of coffee growers for their effort in the conservation of biodiversity, soil and water resources, and carbon sequestration in the province, a marketing company based at Texas, USA has identified Tublay, Benguet as trial site for the reward of environmental services they provided.

Montanosa LLC-USA representative Domini Mariano said that growing coffee and other fruit tree vegetations within the farms and backyards of farmers rehabilitate our natural resources. It also mitigates climate change through carbon sequestration.

Coffee growers in the region are known for their organic agro-forestry practices and their involvement in watershed rehabilitation and protection.

"These environmental services must be rewarded to farmers and payments will be given through kinds (like coffee seedlings), assistance, trainings, or other incentives. Also, the coffee products go to the farmers", Mariano said.

"Aside from protecting the environment, this reward scheme also seeks to increase the annual income of a farmer, promote voluntarism, and teamwork", he added.

Payment of environmental services is now an emerging scheme in an agro-forestry development program in the country.

Initially, the payment scheme was trialed earlier at Kalahan, Nueva Viscaya and in Bakun, Benguet.

Likewise, the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) backs the project as they encourage farmers to grow coffee in their backyards or establish coffee plantations.

City Regulates Kids' Participation in Parades

BAGUIO CITY - The participation of children below seven years old in parades is now subject to regulations.

The city council last Monday approved on final reading Ordinance No. 31 series of 2014 imposing rules in the participation of children in parades.

Authored by Councilor Betty Lourdes Tabanda, the measure sets the following guidelines:

*Children shall only participate in parades when their attendance is necessary;

*Children shall always be accompanied by adults from assembly time up to the finish. When accompanied by neither parent nor guardian, a written consent from the parent or guardian must be secured and presented. No adult shall be allowed to accompany more than two children at any given time;

*Assembly time for children shall not be earlier than 6:30 in the morning. Children shall not be allowed to participate in a parade that extends beyond 6:30 in the evening;

*Children shall not be made to carry heavy load or instruments;

*Attire shall be appropriate to age and weather condition;

*Proper security and medical personnel shall be stationed to respond to emergency calls;

*Should there be adults in the parade, children shall be positioned in front of the line so that they would finish first;

*As much as practicable, the distance to be covered by children must be shorter than the rest of the participants; and

*In case of inclement weather, children, even when accompanied by adult, shall not participate.

In her measure, Tabanda said children's participation in the parade "always adds color and life, and gives more meaning to any celebration."

"However, it was observed that little children who walk the long stretch during a parade are exposed to the elements that endanger their health and well-being. Their developing bodies cannot endure the physical strain, and they just cannot cope with their adult counterpart. While physical advancements start to manifest in young children especially the preschoolers, they are highly mobile and may get into trouble when unattended. Although the stage of development in each child varies, this period is crucial. Any risk or injury would have a lifelong effect on the
