Below that, it shows a 'Sample Project' with a 'Work Flow' section. The main part of the screenshot is a Gantt chart with a grid. The vertical axis lists tasks such as 'Online Check', 'Spec Check', 'Research Groups', 'Collect Specs', 'Develop', 'Test', 'Samples', 'Demo Video', 'Create Media', 'Product Upload', 'Create Social Media', 'Upload Social Media', 'Email Mkt Leads', 'Sales Process', and 'Create Templates'. A legend at the top indicates task status: 'Critical Task - Behind Schedule' (red), 'Ahead' (green), 'On Time' (yellow), 'Behind' (orange), and 'Complete' (grey). Each task which is entered, will automatically use your data, to produce a very simple report. This will show you when each task is due to start and finish, how far you should be into each task, the category of the task (ahead of schedule, completed etc), as well as whether or not the task is a parent task or critical task. This section updates each day, keeping you up to date with the management of each task.

This is one of the best aspects of this spreadsheet. A Gantt chart, showing when each task is due to be done, and the current status. You can filter this chart by work flow categories, in order to focus on a specific aspect of the project. All tasks appear in order of categories, as well as in order of their start dates. This chart is not only automatically updated when you update each task, but you can set the starting date of the chart, and view up to a year at a time. Excluding weekends and bank holidays.

There is also an automated reports page, showing you all the active tasks, and how they are progressing. Should there be any 'problem tasks', you would be able to identify them easily here, in order to take any necessary action. This sheet also gives an overview of the project, ideal if you have a meeting with a client, or a director who wishes to know the progress of the project. When you add this sheet to the overall project chart, you will get a 'birds' eye view of your project, enabling you to make a judgement of progress.

Lastly, there is an internal report. This contains details which you may not want to show your client, but it will help you to get a better idea of how your project performed, in order to address any issues before the next project. It shows you some statistics about the status of each task, broken down by category or personnel. This will allow you to spot any work flow categories or people who did not perform as required.

As these are spreadsheets, and not programmed software, you can decide how you use them. Each spreadsheet can be saved into the file of your choice, and renamed as desired. You can set up your own system, to your own requirements, and then use the spreadsheets within that system. You can use as many of these spreadsheets as you require within your business, and you can choose which staff have access to them.
