P100K reward for student's killers

BAGUIO CITY – The City Government has put up a one hundred thousand pesos cash reward for whoever could help police investigators to effect the arrest of the three knife-wielding individuals who brutally murdered a 16-year old student of the Pines City National High School (PCNHS) along Labsan Street, Kayang Extension, here, Tuesday morning.

Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan said the cash reward will be taken from one of the accounts of the local government that has sufficient savings to help in the immediate resolution of one of the celebrated crimes that was recently committed in the city and has again tainted the city's peace and order campaign.

Consultations required for Experts urged to decide on color of Lion's head

BAGUIO CITY – The Association of Barangay Councils (ABC) in the city stated it will conduct massive consultations among its members and various stakeholders in the city's 128 barangays to gather their sentiments, opinions, and recommendations on how to put in place an Indigenous Peoples Mandatory Representative (IPMR) to sit as a regular member of the barangay council for the prescribed term.

ABC President and Councilor Michael Lawana said he will initiate the conduct of consultations among its members by early next year to determine the collective position of the organization relative to the pending proposal to appoint IPMR in the city's barangays and in the local legislative body pursuant to the provisions of the Indigenous Peoples rights Act (IPRA).

"Our barangay officials have different positions on the matter that is why we need to consult with them and enlighten them on the matter before we will come out with a collective decision. We do not object to the appointment of IPMRs in the city's barangays but there are some compelling reasons why some barangay officials are against the putting in place of an IPMR in their respective councils," Lawana stressed.

Some barangay officials claimed the appointment of an IPMR in their councils will definitely affect their honorarium and the allowances granted to barangay health workers, barangay nutrition scholars, barangay nutrition action officers and barangay tanods which are all sourced out from the meagre personal services appropriation of their budget considering that there will be an added personnel who will be included in the allocation of the limited allocation of the barangays.

The concerned barangay officials claimed the appointed personnel are equally important in rendering public service to the barangays that is why depriving them of their supposed compensation will greatly affect their performance in discharging their assigned duties and responsibilities that will jeopardize the programs and projects of

Mayor warns public on treasure hunting in city

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan said the city's environment code prohibits any natural or juridical person from conducting treasure hunting activities in the city because these are reportedly destructive to the environment plus the fact that many of those who were previously engaged in it have gone bankrupt.

The local chief executive admitted that a group was able to obtain a treasure hunting permit from the National Museum to conduct treasure hunting activities within the premises of the Baguio Convention Center to dig up the alleged remaining Yamashita treasure wherein the government can have a substantial share.

"It is clear under the provisions of our environment code that treasure hunting activities are banned in the different parts of the city that is why we advised the members to first seek the necessary exemption from the City Council," Domogan stressed.

He pointed out there were individuals who were successful in their treasure hunting activities but there were a lot more individuals who were not successful in the said endeavor as they suffered from extreme financial losses.

Further, he said those who were lucky to locate some of the hidden treasures were mostly accidental in nature because their primary purpose in conducting digging activities in certain areas of the city was for construction and not actually for treasure hunting.

According to him, it is still unfortunate that there are still people who believe in rumors that there are still huge Yamashita treasures deposited in BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan recommended the hiring of experts to make the appropriate recommendations on how to bring back the original color of the Lion's Head along Kennon road, one of the premier tourist destinations in the city.

The local chief executive claimed the city is currently facing numerous problems that deserve the personal attention of local officials and that it is best for the local government to leave to the experts the decision on what will be the real color of the Lion's Head.

"Everyone knows the color of a lion that is why it is not worthy to debate on what will be the real color that will be used for the Lion's Head along Kennon Road. It is best to leave the matter to the experts so that we can concentrate on finding solutions to the city's existing problems," Domogan stressed.

Earlier, the Baguio City Host Lion's Club signified its intention to change strategic areas in the city, one of which is the Baguio Convention Center area, but there might be no truth to the matter since a number of rich Baguio residents who were into treasure hunting for several years now have practically become poor.

The group that was able to obtain a treasure hunting permit from the National Museum cited that a 90-year old former Japanese World War II veteran has testified to on the presence of the Yamashita treasure hidden in one of the tunnels within the vicinity of the Baguio Convention Center.

He expressed optimism that most of those involved in treasure hunting were able to learn their lessons the hard way after losing their

the current color of the Lion's Head and bring back the colors black and yellow but the matter was brought to the local legislative body for the deliberation.

He said there is nothing wrong if the old colors of the Lion's Head will be brought back but concerned stakeholders should be consulted to get their sentiments before the implementation of the plan of the Baguio City Host Lion's Club considering that it has been the group that had been maintaining the tourist spot.

According to him, the Baguio City Host Lion's Club should be given the discretion to implement whatever project that it desires to undertake in the said tourist spot so that it will continue to be a major tourist attraction in the city.

In fairness to the prestigious civic organization, Domogan, who is also a member of the Baguio City Host Lion's Club, claimed there is a need for the group to be given the liberty to decide on what will be the applicable colors for the Lion's Head to help in attracting more visitors. Earlier, the local legislative body invited representatives from the Baguio City Host Lions' Club, barangay officials of Camp 7, officials of the Baguio City District Engineering Office and the stallholders located around the Lion's Head to hear their views on the proposal of bringing back the old colors of the Lion's Head, however, only representatives from the barangay officials of Camp 7 and the City General Services Officer Romeo D. Concio appeared before the regular session of the local legislative body.

Domogan asserted the best people to decide on the matter will be the relevant experts as they will be the ones to also ascertain the type of paint that should be used so as not to allow the paint to immediately fade with the fast changing weather condition in the city./By Dexter A. See# wealth, thus, it should serve as a reflection to those still interested in such activities.

Domogan appealed to these treasure hunters that they will have no place to do so considering that those who earlier pursued similar activities did not actually get anything in return, except for the fact that they became practically poor after treasure hunting ate up their riches.

He asserted it is now up to the City Council to decide whether or not to allow the treasure hunting activities of the applicant even with the approved permit from the National Museum./By Dexter A. See

Cops ordered to fastrack probe on series of deaths

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan ordered the Baguio City Police Office (BCPO) to fastrack the on-going investigation on the reported deaths while under investigation in the city to prevent unwarranted conclusions from the public that extra-judicial killings have been committed due to the government's anti-drug campaign.

The local chief executive revealed that since the new administration took over and launched its aggressive anti-drug campaign, there were 30 deaths that were recorded in the city with four deaths resulting from legitimate police operations while 26 were described by the police as deaths under investigation.

Of these deaths under investigation, he claimed two were said to be drug pushers while 24 were alleged drug pushers from the different barangays of the city.

"We do not want the government's anti-drug campaign to be tainted with allegations of extra-judicial killings that is why the police should come out with results of their investigations into the alleged deaths under investigation to allay the fears of the public that individuals suspected to be involved in the illegal drug trade could just be killed anytime," Domogan stressed.

He admitted several months had lapsed but the BCPO has not yet submitted detailed reports on the real cause of the deaths under investigation which happened at the height of the government's effort to curb the illegal drug trade nationwide.

According to him, the BCPO leadership was recently reminded to

To believe, or not to believe, the Philippine president?

Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte frequently makes controversial comments that he or his aides later seek to clarify or quash completely.

Here are some of Duterte's remarks and subsequent clarifications that often leave journalists and the public unclear on his actual position:

- Journalists at fault -

The quote:

Just before taking office, Duterte said in June that journalists could be murdered if they were corrupt.

"Just because you're a journalist you are not exempted from assassination, if you're a son of a bitch."

The explanation:

After UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon expressed concern at the comments, Duterte's then spokesman, Salvador Panelo, released a statement blaming the controversy on "incorrect news reports".

"The president-elect has not endorsed -- cannot -- and will never endorse extra-judicial killings, they being contrary to law."

"He does not condone the killing of journalists nor any citizen for that matter, regardless of its purpose."

- Death threat -

The quote:

Duterte threatened in November to kill human rights activists because of their criticism of his crime crackdown that has seen police and vigilantes kill thousands of people:

"Human rights (defenders) say that I kill. I said: 'Okay, let us stop and let them (criminals) multiply. So when harvest time comes, here will be more who will die.' I will include you in that because you let them multiply."

"The president did not mean he would do that. It was just frustration he expressed through language. You know that is how the president talks."

The explanation:

Presidential spokesman Martin Andanar said human rights activists should not fear being killed.

- Split from US -

The quote:

In an October address to Chinese businessmen in Beijing, Duterte signalled his intent to end the Philippines' decades-long alliance with the United States in favour of closer ties with China and Russia:

"In this venue, I announce my separation from the United States."

"America has lost. I've realigned myself in your (Chinese) ideological flow and maybe I will also go to Russia to talk to (President Vladimir) Putin and tell him that there are three of us against the world: China, Philippines and Russia. It's the only way."

The explanation:

After Duterte said upon returning from China he would not sever US ties, spokesman Ernesto Abella urged journalists not to take the president literally:

"Let us not be too literal. You've seen the way he speaks, so in other words watch and understand the context of what he says, okay?"

"Maybe the most important thing here is to understand the words 'cut ties.' He said it's a possibility that he could, that he might... so let's try to use our creative imagination, okay."

- Leaving the UN -

The quote:

In August, Duterte said the Philippines may withdraw from the United Nations in response to UN criticism of his war on crime.

"Maybe we'll just have to decide to separate from the United Nations. If you are that disrespectful, son of a whore, then I will just leave you."

The explanation:

Foreign Secretary Perfecto Yasay quickly insisted the Philippines would remain with the United Nations:

"The president was tired, disappointed, hungry when he made the statement. We must give him leeway. He is also human."

Later, when reporters asked him about the issue, Duterte replied: "Can't you take a joke?"

- Respectful -

The quote:

Just before departing for a September summit in Laos that was meant to include a bilateral meeting with Barack Obama, Duterte used foul language in a warning to the US president against

KAKAMPI MO ANG BATAS

P130 M the true
bribe for immigration officials?

BY: ATTY. BATAS MAURICIO

LIFE'S INSPIRATIONS: "... Yet to all who did receive him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God---children born not of natural descent, nor of human decision or a husband's will, but born of God..." (John 1:12-13, the Holy Bible).

-ooo-

SHOULD A PERSON WHO HAS BEEN BAPTIZED BE BAPTIZED FOR THE SECOND TIME? Question: is a person who had already been baptized before still required to be baptized again? The Anak ng Diyos Kadugo Ni Kristo (AND KNK, or the Children of God Blood Kin of the Christ) Church believes that if the previous baptismal did not grant to the believer the right or status of being a "child of God", as the Bible requires, there is a need for another baptism.

P50 M BRIBE IS JUST TIP OF ICEBERG: If we are to backtrack a little on the raging controversy over the receipt of P50 million as bribe by Deputy Immigration Commissioners Mike Robles and Al Argosino allegedly from international online gambling operator Jack Lam, we will readily deduce that the bribe here will not only be that amount of P50 million.

Fact is, when Justice Secretary Vitaliano Aguirre II started his public disclosures about Lam's efforts to bribe him so the Department of Justice could be Lam's godfather in his casino businesses here in the Philippines to protect illegal Chinese nationals working here, the amount of P100,000.00 per illegal Chinese was being bruited about as the routine fee so the illegals can be allowed to come in and work, even without visas or permits.

Now, if we multiply this P100,000.00 bribe per Chinese illegal national with the figure 1,300 (which is the number of illegal Chinese nationals arrested in Lam's casino at the Clark Freeport Zone), it would be clear that some P130 million would have to be paid for the 1,300 illegal aliens that Lam employed in his gambling businesses.

IS P130 M THE TRUE BRIBE FOR IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS? The question is, why are we hearing the amount of only P50 million as having been paid by Lam by way of a bribe to Robles and Argosino? What happened to the remaining P80 million from the P130 million which, if we are to believe Aguirre's disclosure, is supposed to be paid for all the 1,300 illegal Chinese nationals who were arrested by the Bureau of Immigration several weeks ago?

Vic Somintac, the Malacanang reporter of Radyo Agila DZEC (1062 kHz on the AM band) and my partner at "Tambalang Batas at Somintac" (which is a Mondays-to-Fridays 6 am to 7 am program at DZEC), and I, believe that if the delivery of the P50 million to Robles and Argosino was not captured by CCTV cameras and then aired on national television and exposed in a newspaper column, the P80 million would also be paid.

The United States has not renewed a major aid package to the Philippines because of "significant concerns" about the rule of law under President Rodrigo Duterte, the US embassy said on Thursday.

The Principle of Extreme Ownership

BY: CLYDE B. SACPA

Being a teacher entails a lot of commitment. It also means that you are the embodiment of many pro- fession rolled into one. There are times that the teacher will become a little bit of a "handyman", "engineer", "nurse", "Doctor", "an attorney" but almost all of the time a leader. Part of being a teacher is being a leader, in her classroom, community or to her co-workers. Teachers cannot hide this fact and whether she likes it or not she must accept this reality with open arms.

Being a leader is something that can break a teacher. All the decisions you'll be making will create a ripple of effect to your surroundings and if you made a mistake critics will be there quicker than a lightning to bring you down. The only way one is able to go through this is through preparation. A teacher must arm himself/herself with the necessary knowledge he/she needs to be an exemplary leader.

One of the most practical and effective principle that a teacher can use in his role as a leader is the principle of "Extreme Ownership" a leadership principle that is widely used by the American Navy Seals and was shared by a Navy Seal vet. Jocko Willink.

Extreme ownership tells us that everything that happens under your leadership is your responsibility and you have to own everything whether it's good or bad or worst. The reason for this is, if you own up full responsibility to the result you'll can come up with solutions that you can actually manipulate hands on. If we compare this to a leader who blames his people of a bad result, the leader would have few options on how to control the situation and most of the time the only option he/she has is to fire those he/she thought messed up. In extreme ownership, the leader instead of blaming his people would say that, Maybe he/she have not explained the project well to his people and he/she will be working hard to make his/her people understand the goal that he/she wishes to achieve.

On another note, having this "Extreme Ownership" principle as a teacher and a leader will influence everyone inside your circle to do the same. Thus creating a better and more productive environment for you. This principle is not new as it is one of the Seven Successful habit of Great people by Stephen Covey, but it is seldom used in the field of leadership. So, my dear teachers go forth and use it in the field. Let's be different let's be efficient# brutal murder of an innocent young student who was simply on his way to school at the time of the commission of the crime. We appeal to possible witnesses to help our investigators ascertain the identity of the suspects so that they will be made to answer for the crime they committed," Domogan stressed.

The local chief executive pointed out there is a need for the Baguio City Police Office (BCPO) to work double time for the immediate resolution of the crime so that it will not be again used to depict a worsening peace and order situation amidst the sudden change in the leadership of the BCPO.

Kenneth Pacheco Velasco, 16, a Grade 10 student of the PCNHS, was on his way to school and decided to take the shorter route when he was waylaid by the three still unidentified knife-wielding suspects, who allegedly took his cellphone, tablet, and P200 pocket money, before stabbing him at least 40 times, most of which were on his neck, that caused his instantaneous death.

The murdered student was described by his parents to be a responsible individual who helped in the household chores and vowed to be the bread winner of the family once he will be able to finish his studies considering that his father is still recovering from a stroke.

Domogan underscored the cooperation of the public in such cases is important because witnesses must provide the investigators with the descriptions of the suspects that could guide them to effect their arrest and answer for the crime that they committed.

According to him, he could not understand why the suspects went to the extent of killing the student when their primary intention was to take his personal belongings and valuables.

He directed police investigators to exert extra effort to identify the suspects and arrest them soonest.

He insinuated that the incident created fear among students making use of the shorter route leading to the PCNHS, thus, barangay officials and law enforcers must make sure that there will be the constant presence of uniformed and non-uniformed policemen in the area to guarantee the safety of those using the route and gather more information about the suspects who perpetrated the crime./By Dexter A. The question is, to whom will this remaining P80 million be paid? Are we to believe that mere deputy immigration commissioners would be the only ones that would be bribed here? Do they not have officers higher in rank than they, whose palms should also be greased with bribe money? Who are these higher officers?

SECOND BAPTISM NEEDED FOR TRULY ENLIGHTENED BELIEVERS: When does the baptism of a believer transform him or her into a "child of God"? The Bible, in John 1:12-13, has the answer, and it says: "...but to those who received him, to those who believed in his name, to them he gave the right to become children of God. Their being children of God is not the result of any human will or desire, but they became children of God because they were born of God..."

This seems simple enough.

In fact many are saying they are already children of God because they, too, "received and believed". But there is more to this than simply "receiving and believing". Who, or what, must a person receive and believe in so he or she can become a child of God? The person who cannot say who or what he or she must receive and believe in needs to be baptized again, after receiving enlightenment on this issue.

On the other hand, some barangay officials claimed there are already officials in their council who are already members of indigenous peoples and appointing an IPMR will increase their representations while other non-IP residents will definitely make an issue on the matter, thus, the need for concerned government agencies to render a definitive opinion on the matter to put the issue to rest.

Further, some barangay officials pointed out there is no compelling reason why an IPMR will be appointed as a member of their councils because there are reportedly no indigenous peoples living in their areas of jurisdiction, thus, the appointment of the IPMR should only be applicable to the barangays with IP constituents.

Other barangay officials in the city challenged the local legislative body to first put in place an IPMR that will serve an example for them to emulate so that IPs will give the sufficient representation in all levels of governance.

Pending before the local legislative body is a proposed ordinance mandating the appointments of IPMRs not only with the local legislative body but also the barangay councils of the 128 barangays pursuant to the existing guidelines promulgated by the National Commission on Indigenous Peoples (CIP) that required all local governments to prioritize the appointments of IPMR in their respective local legislative bodies./By Dexter A. come out with constant updates on the status of these numerous deaths that happened in the different parts of the city to negate the impression of some quarters that those who were killed during the implementation of anti-drug operations were victims of extra-judicial killings.

Death penalty for suspects in heinous crimes backed

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan supports the passage of a law restoring death penalty for suspects of heinous crimes to help in preventing the occurrence of heinous crimes in the different parts of the country that tend to compromise the government's peace and order campaign.

The local chief executive said the recent brutal murder of an innocent 16-year old Grade 10 student of the Pines City National High School is an indication that lawless elements of the society continue to lord it over because of the absence of the imposition of capital punishment.

Further, he added the previous implementation of the death penalty in the country had not been effective because it was EVENTUALLY SCRAPPED BY Congress during the term of former President and now Pampanga Rep. Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

"We are supportive of the move by Congress to bring back the death penalty but it should be imposed to those involved in the commission of heinous crimes," Domogan stressed.

He explained suspects of heinous crimes nowadays seem to be not hesitant in the commission of crimes that tend to sow fear among the residents in the places where the crimes are being committed, thus, compromising the peace and order situation of the said places.

According to him, there is a need for the present administration to be firm in the implementation of the death penalty for suspects of heinous crimes so that the people will be able to witness the government's political will in putting an end to the rampant occurrence of prevalence of heinous crimes that affect the stability of peace and order in certain areas of the country.

He expressed optimism that there will be a significant improvement in the overall peace and order situation in different parts of the country once there will be a consistent implementation of the death penalty for suspects of heinous crimes to serve as a reflection of other criminals not to emulate the commission of such crimes as they will be imposed the stiffest penalty.

Domogan recommended Congress must define the limits on the heinous crimes covered by the death penalty to prevent unnecessary conclusions from concerned sectors that government is trying to deprive people of their right to life.

The proposed revival of the death penalty is now pending deliberations with the House of Representatives after the measure was able to hurdle the sub-committee where it was assigned for the conduct of consultations with the concerned sectors of the country.

ment's anti-drug campaign if the police cannot handle the situation properly, thus, the need for law enforcers to immediately come out with detailed updates on the cases so the public is aware of what really transpired during the said anti-drug operations.

Domogan admitted the government's anti-drug campaign has contributed in improving the peace and order situation in the city because of the significant reduction in the crimes over the past several months.

However, he added there is a need for law enforcers to be vigilant because there might be some individuals and groups, especially the drug groups, who might take advantage of the situation and take the law into their own hands by assassinating their rivals in the trade and then blame the police as responsible for such incidents.

He claimed the fears of the people can only be allayed once there will be positive results in the reported deaths under investigation to send a clear message that the police is in control of the situation./By Dexter A. See#

Final report on results of drug test sought

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan requested the City Health Services office (CHSO) to finalize the final report of the results of the drug test conducted recently on officials and employees of the local government to guide decision-makers on the appropriate steps to prevent the public servants from being involved in the use of prohibited drugs that might compromise their ability to render quality service to the people.

The local chief executive said the results of the mandatory drug test conducted on the 1,700-strong work force is just an initial step as those who will be found positive for the use of prohibited drugs will have to undergo the required confirmatory test and other prescribed procedures to contest the results prior to the conduct of investigation on them.

"We have to make it clear that the results of the mandatory drug test on city officials and employees are just preliminary results because those who were able to test positive will have to undergo a stringent process. We should not be judgemental on the matter because the process will go a long way before concluding that an individual is involved in the use of illegal drugs," Domogan stressed.

Initially, City Health Officer Rowena Galpo informed city officials during their regular Monday meeting that there are already five employees of the local government who tested positive for illegal drugs but the final report has yet to be finalized and subsequently submitted to the local chief executive for further assessment and evaluation.

Domogan declined to identify those who tested positive during the mandatory drug test because there are still a number of pro- Cont. on page 8 is a possibility that the proposal to revive the death penalty in the country will pass through the eye of the needle because of the involvement of numerous pro-lift advocates trying their best to block the enactment of the death penalty bill into law because it is against the Christian cedures that will have to be undertaken before a conclusive decision will be derived from the series of tests on the officials and employees.

According to him, those who tested positive for the use of illegal drugs remain innocent until otherwise proven by the results of the succeeding tests that they must undergo that is why it will be unfair to them if their identities will be prematurely released to the public as it will surely jeopardize their integrity and credibility as public servants.

It can be recalled that all the city officials and employees of the local government underwent the mandatory drug test upon the marching orders of President Rodrigo R. Duterte to help rid the bureaucracy of unscrupulous officials and employees involved in the use of prohibited drugs that might compromise the deliver of services to the people.

Domogan claimed some of the employees that tested positive for the use of illegal drugs already underwent counselling by experts from the city Social Welfare and Development Office and the City Health Services Office considering that they approached social welfare officers for them to provide them the needed assistance for them to be brought back to mainstream society.

He said the local government is supportive of the administration's bid to curb the proliferation of illegal drugs which have merited positive results but it also as a down side, particularly the emergence of reported extrajudicial killings that is now being criticized by human rights advocates, thus, the need for law enforcers to take the necessary precaution in the implementation of their anti-drug operations to prevent innocent individuals from being caught in the crossfire./By Dexter A. Air breathability in Baguio

BAGUIO CITY – Data from particulate matter (PM 10) measuring machines show that Baguio air fares “good” to “fair” in most areas, scoring 115 microgram/cm³ where the standard is 150 mu/cm³.

This was announced by Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) Environmental Management Board (EMB) head Reynaldo Digamo in a “Kapihan para sa Kalikasan,” last Tuesday at their new office along Gibraltar, Pacdal.

This was also the content of the Baguio-La Trinidad-Itogon-Sablan-Tuba-Tublay (BLISTT) data for the regular monitoring done in 2016, Digamo said. Air in certain places in Tublay and Sablan, and the Benguet Capitol and Km. 5 areas in La Trinidad were regularly monitored.

As the PM 2.5 measuring machine along lower Session road was destroyed, replacements are awaited, pending purchase of 28 units for other areas, he also said.

Digamo said the BLISTT airshed was activated with activities in emission inventory, area walkability tests, and monitoring.

Area walkability was conducted last month, from upper Session road up to city hall, where certain mobile and non-mobile pollutant sources were pointed out. Validation was done for areas suitable for walking on said route.

As for smoke-belching vehicle monitoring, testing centers around the city are requested to be regulated. Digamo said there are regional monitoring laws for the matter./Julie G. Fianza#

Dominguez, a resident of Holy Ghost Proper barangay, triumphed in the World Wushu Championships in Lima, Peru held last September

Enhanced NGP plans out

BAGUIO CITY – The Cordillera Administrative Region has successfully complied with the National Greening Program (NGP), targeting a high survival rates due to two-year maintenance practices in planted areas.

This is according to Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) CAR regional director Ralph Pablo in the Ka-pihan on Environmental Concerns Tuesday at their new office along Gibraltar rd.

At least 40% of the CAR forest cover were planted from 2011 to 2016, Pablo said. As the CAR is rich in natural wealth, sustainable and equitable plans for the protection and preservation of the natural environment should be a priority, he further said.

The CAR ranks third to Caraga region and Cagayan Valley plant-ed in consonance to the NGP.

As to the NGP roadmap there are 100,000 hectares with some un-plantable areas, needing more than a billion seedlings. Re-planting is being done to insure a hundred percent survival rate, Pablo added.

Project partner Watershed and Water Resources and Research Center (WWRRC) represented by Minda Odsey in the forum said quality seedlings are being produced for the project. Experimental planting sites are in some state universities, with partner peoples' organizations helping out, she added. Success stories of the NGP are being told by involved individuals, organizations and agencies, it was known.

The NGP would have a 12-year expansion from 2016-2028, RD Pablo said, with agro-forestry as main flagship program in the CAR. Aside from environmental greening, fruit-bearing and cash crop shall be planted in a targeted 100,000 hectares in the uplands. The project, Enhanced NGP (ENGP) would also help in the economic way of the community as well as recharge the water aquifers, Pablo also said.

According to DENR-CAR Assistant Regional Director for technical services Augusto Lagon, continuous as well as replacement planting is being done to ensure survival, which as of November 30 is pegged at 83% to 85%. The rate is being validated, he added.

ENGP shall be maintained through community accountability and participation, management, technical and financial assistance from various organi-

City's continuing support for drug surrenderees

BAGUIO CITY – Combatting the proliferation of drugs in the Philippines is the top priority of the present administration under the leadership of president Rodrigo Duterte.

Baguio is not excused to this kind of problem and to support the war against drugs campaign, the city aims to assist and help Persons with Substance Use Disorders (PSUDs) to become productive and contributing member of the community in attaining a better quality of life.

Non-government associations, government and non-government organizations, private organizations as well as religious sectors are willing to help and share their respective resources in guiding and assisting said drug surrenderees towards a better future and life.

City social welfare and development officer Betty Fangasan disclosed that a total of 132 surrenderees have already completed the Community Based Emergency Response to PSUDs, their families and stakeholders.

A consultation meeting with the drug surrenderees was conducted by the Department of Social Welfare and Development last Dec. 15 at the Baguio City multi-purpose hall where some surrenderees realized the different programs and services of the different government agencies for the continuing rehabilitation, transformation and re-integration support for recovering drug dependents.

Among the programs and services provided include livelihood, practical skills training, financial assistance, medical assistance, psychosocial services, information and education campaign, among others.

Moreover, so as not to duplicate the programs and services of the different agencies, the city government here will be drafting an administrative order or a memorandum of agreement on that matter among service providers to delineate their roles, functions and areas of assignment to facilitate service delivery.

As of December 12, the Baguio City Police Office (BCPO) reported that there are 1,900 surrenderees in the city where 1,745 are users and 155 are pushers. While they have arrested/apprehended 22 drug users and 167 drug pushers. /Jho Arranz#

City ready to bid out LET streetlight project

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio G. Domogan ordered the City General Services Office (GSO) to assess the city's Light Emitting Diode (LED) streetlight project to ascertain if it complies with existing standards and ready to be bidded out.

The local chief executive claimed the city's LED streetlight project is long overdue, thus, the GSO must ascertain if the TOR approved in 2011 is still compliant with existing industry standards so that it could already proceed with the public bidding of the project.

"We want to push through with the project but it seems that there are some new trends in the industry that might have rendered our earlier terms of reference outdated so we must reassess our position to prevent further complications once we bid out the project," Domogan stressed.

He admitted the local government has a commitment with the Benguet Electric Cooperative (BENECO) to replace the old streetlight bulbs with LED bulbs to convert to environment-friendly and energy efficient fixtures to save on the city's huge power expenses.

In 2011, the City Council approved Resolution No. 446, series of 2011 prescribing the terms of reference for the city's LED project but the Bids and Wards Committee (BAC) recommended for the revision of the TOR which was subsequently delayed.

According to him, converting the city's streetlighting system to LED is the ultimate way to go but the local government must first make sure that the project will ensure quality lighting at the least cost to the government.

He explained the city is guaranteed 30 percent savings on its existing P60 million annual expenses for streetlight once it will convert the existing system to LED with the replacement of sodium bulbs to LED.

BENECO management wants the local government to fast-track the immediate conversion of its existing streetlight system to LED to prevent it from incurring further heavy losses as it is the one maintaining the more than 9,000 streetlight fixtures distributed around the city.

He urged the GSO to come out with its detailed findings and recommendations the earliest possible time so that the city will evaluate what option to take to realize the LED streetlight project.

If the local legislative body will take longer to deliberate on the project, he said it will be best for the city to use the original TOR for the bidding as long as there will be no evident differences in the specifications of the LED bulbs to be used compared to the latest type of bulbs.

He appealed to the BENECO management to continue maintaining and operating the city's streetlights as the city tries its best to implement this long-delayed LED project to help lessen the huge expenditures of the cooperative. /By Dexter A. See#

NEW MALCOLM SQUARE INAUGURATION - City officials headed by Mayor Mauricio Domogan, Congressman Marquez Go and vice mayor Edison Bilog cut the ceremonial ribbon during the inauguration of the New Malcolm Square (People's Park) last December 15./By Bong Cayabyab

"New Malcolm Square" inaugurated

BAGUIO CITY – Mayor Mauricio Domogan, Congressman Mark Go, Vice-Mayor Edison Bilog, councilor Elmer Datuin, budget officer Leticia Clemente and legal officer Melchor Rabanes led other officials and guests during the inauguration of the new-ly-renovated and rehabilitated Malcolm Square last Thursday.

Also known as People's Park, it is named after American Justice George Malcolm, who spearheaded the creation of the city's charter.

The activity started with the Baguio City High School Band regaling the crowd with Christmas carols at around 3 pm followed by a ribbon cutting ceremony by city officials then blessing rites performed by Fr. Manuel Flores, Jr. of the Baguio-Benguet Diocese.

A formal program ensued highlighted by the Yuletide Messages of the Mayor and Congressman where they both extolled the "New Malcolm Square" as a world-class people-friendly multi-function events area that residents and visitors to enjoy and also take care of.

Doves were also released by city officials symbolizing important values that needs to be inculcated and practiced by everyone.

Architect Aries Go, who designed the area free-of-charge, said he observed similar facilities in other countries to learn what's best to adapt for the city.

Mayor Mauricio Domogan earlier said the P8.9 million project that began last April is expected to restore the area into its original status as a plaza for various public and private activities.

Datuin, who proposed the restoration project, said it was high time to restore the old grandeur and intended purpose of the area as a plaza and open space ideal for all kinds of events.

Among its features are a collapsible and movable stage, bigger capacity audience area, areas ideal for arts and exhibits while the sitting area usually occupied by senior citizens will be retained including the Malcolm bust.

The city buildings and architecture office that prepared the program of work describes the project as follows:

"The project reimagines the park as an open space allowing for multiple types of activities. The wedge shape and gradual slope of the site is taken advantage of by introducing a stepped surface that may function as platforms for viewing during speaker-led events and a stage for others;

"The space would also allow for mobile stages and setups to be fabricated anywhere within the square allowing it to be used for different purposes such as theatrical performances, concerts, fairs and art exhibitions;

"The main square is distinctively defined by randomly striped dark grey and white monolithic tiles. Striped grass and pavers, new timber clad benches and a pedestrian street at one of the edges;

"This street on the south side would accommodate the heavy pedestrian traffic from Session Road effectively extending it and gentrifying the area. This could eventually spur the re-development of the buildings around the square and introduce new destinations for tourists and locals."

The project also included the rehabilitation of the drainage system and construction of a rainwater catchment retention cistern for flood control. /gaby keith#
