Make Use of the Cold Months

Now is the time to get any of those little surgeries performed that have been put off for six months. There are no flies around at the moment and the horses are inside in a clean environment which will help to control any infections. For example, castrations and sarcoid removals are ideal at this time of year.

Body condition scoring

What is it?

Body condition scoring is a summary assessment of your horse's condition, estimating the amount of fat cover on your horse at 'any given time'. It can be a useful tool to help you recognise whether you need to adjust your horse's feed according to activity level. Regular assessment using this system helps to give some objectivity to your horse's condition, aiding in making decisions to adjust feeding plans or help detect potential arising problems, for example dentition or parasitic burdens. Key areas to assess are over the neck, shoulders, ribs, backbone, rump, and top of the tail.

Scoring on 0-5, the following explains.

0: Emaciated; little or no flesh covering, marked ewe neck

1: Poor condition; ribs easily visible, skin more supple, ewe neck.

2: Moderate condition; flat sides to rump, ribs just visible, backbone covered, however spine can be felt.

3: Good condition (ideal!); pelvis covered and round appearance, ribs just covered, easily felt but not visible.

4: Excess condition; gutter over quarters to root of tail (apple appearance), ribs well covered and pressure needed to be felt.

5: Obese; deep gutter over quarters to root of tail, ribs cannot be palpated, back broad and flat, marked crest, fat pads present.
