3. You have a close friend at work that recently was promoted to a higher position than you, even though you believe that you have more experience and should have gotten the promotion. Talk with your friend about your feelings.
4. You recently went through a break up with your girlfriend/boyfriend. Your best friend has a great relationship with his/her girlfriend. Though you are friends, this makes you feel uncomfortable when you are around them because it reminds you of what you don't have anymore. Meet with a friend to talk about this.
5. You have a great relationship but feel that your partner spends more time with her/his family, than with you. Talk to him/her about this.
6. You have been asked to speak to a group of young children about jealousy and envy. Give them a 5-minute talk about what it means.
7. You feel that your partner does not respect your relationship with him/her. Your partner travels a lot and you are concerned that maybe they are not being faithful, even though you have no proof. Talk to them about this, and focus on why trust, respect and communication are so important to you.
8. You and your partner have deep feelings for each other, but do not share many common interests. You are concerned that this will become a problem in the relationship. Talk to him/her about the best way to address this before it breaks you apart.
