“Suppose you are living in a metropolitan city situated near a river. A big dike has been constructed to save your city from any untoward situation just like flash flood etc but it is expected that city is going to face unexpected torrential rains this year and there is possibility of flash flood in your city followed by the breakage of dike. So, if it happens then your city will submerge under water leading towards a great destruction on a vast scale ,thus, creating a big crisis ahead The city administration is fully aware of this situation and forms a crisis management team. You are nominated as head of crisis management team. As a head of crisis management team you are required to discuss the pre-emptive measures for crisis management in order to save your city from any untoward situation.”
