

Sushi and hot pot on the move in ICON Park's newest restaurant

Mikado pairs with entertainment district for unique conveyer belt dining experience

ORLANDO, Fla. (August 7, 2019) — Sushi is on a roll and hot pot options are on the go as the conveyer belt fires up for the first time at ICON Park's newest restaurant, Mikado. The Central Florida favorite is now open for business.

The centerpiece of Mikado's ICON Park restaurant is the advanced revolving concept. Guests will be able to select the roll or hot pot addition that catches their eye, as dishes glide by their table. In this interactive experience, the color of the plate determines the price.

"We are so excited to bring some Asian flair to ICON Park, especially with such a fun dining experience," said ICON Park CEO Chris Jaskiewicz, President and CEO of ICON Park. "With Mikado, we are now able to offer our guests even more variety, when it comes to choosing restaurants."

While the high-quality ingredients and fair pricing are key at all of Mikado's four restaurants, ICON Park is the only to feature a conveyer belt system. Mikado initially started in 1996 in New Jersey, before Executive Chefs and owners Joe and Leo Liu brought the restaurant to Hunter's Creek. Since then, their fresh ingredients and masterful sushi chefs have dazzled guests across Central Florida, allowing the restaurant to expand to Altamonte Springs and Lake Mary.

Mikado is the first of three restaurants set to open within the next year at ICON Park.
