

Sentences:

1. In order to show our mother appreciation for everything that she does for us, my brother and I decided to buy her a few presents. We bought her a luxury two week cruise around the Mediterranean, and custom made deluxe clothing to help keep her warm in the upcoming winter.
2. He hadn't bothered to complete his assignment over the weekend, and therefore had nothing to submit to his teacher on Monday morning. Fortunately for him, heavy snowfall on Sunday evening meant the school would be closed for a few more days.
3. When the weather becomes cold and windy, I find living with my friends helps me to cope better. Together we are all able to comfort and support one another.
4. After some intense physical activity, my father would immediately sit down and hydrate. This supposedly helps to alleviate his asthma and breathing difficulties.
5. Whenever she sunbathed on the beach she would forget to apply suntan lotion on her back. Her friends would offer to apply it as a seemingly kind gesture, unbeknownst to her they would draw shapes and write messages on her skin with the lotion. Later the messages had been etched in by the sun, light skin letters on a background of red skin.
6. The smooth satin pillow had been luxuriously hand crafted especially for her and filled with fresh hand-picked goose feathers. The manufacturer told her that if she or anyone else knew of better quality pillows elsewhere, they were willing to compensate them.
7. Babies who are teething usually enjoy something soft but firm to bite down on. It is very soothing for their gums and helps to prevent them from crying excessively.
8. As a metalworker, he was familiar with operating a lathe, he had used one to produce and shape countless products over the years. Due to its high level of heat tolerance, leather was an ideal material to use on this machine's handles.
9. Despite the celebrities having an almost cult like following, it was very surprising to discover that they loathed the attention. They did not see themselves as something special and could not understand why people would rush after them everywhere.
10. The naughty children stood in front of the headmaster as he berated them for their ridiculous behaviour, "That was completely unnecessary," he stated, "What if this was your house, would you behave in this manner?" The children squirmed in discomfort.

11. Having taken the orphan into their home at a tender young age; they had fed, clothed and raised him as their own. The other children had no idea and the parents planned to keep it that way.

12. Although the fire had been raging out of control for the past few hours, the thermal defences had ensured the neighbouring buildings were safe from any flames spreading. Despite this assurance, the residents were experiencing breathing problems and required immediate evacuation.

13. It was very bothersome to repeatedly have to tell the children to keep the noise down, it seemed the words simply went in one ear and out of the other.

14. She seethed in anger as her boss began to complain about the quality of her work. Although she was furious, she restrained her tongue and managed to maintain a calm demeanour.

15. Altogether the charity auction managed to raise three thousand pounds towards the renovation of the building. Upon hearing this, all those who had gathered for the day let out a cheer and began to congratulate one another on a job well done.

16. Neither the elder nor the younger sibling were willing to divulge who had broken the vase, although their parents were already aware. That was not the point of this exercise however, they wanted the children to confess and appreciate the value of honesty.

17. Another one of the football coach's pet peeves was players who trained regularly during the week; but when it came to game day on Saturday, they were nowhere to be seen. Either they had overslept or some other excuse about work.

18. As the grandson of a CEO, he hoped that he would someday inherit the family business. The responsible grandfather was not willing to bestow his company upon his grandson without the necessary reassurance; he wanted proof of his commitment and expected him to complete a business degree with a high classification.

19. The rhythm of the train thundering down the train tracks was captivating. He sat at the end of the carriage, lulled into a trance by the rather monotonous beat.

20. The shiny snake slithered along the floor in the cold night air, momentarily flicking out its tongue to catch the scent of its prey and to change course in order to intercept it.

21. Their next door neighbour had a motherly smile which made them all feel very comfortable in her presence. When her grandchildren were visiting, she would invite them over and they would all play together.

22. As a southerner, he felt out of place every time he visited the north of the country. He felt as though the moment they laid eyes on him, the locals would glare and instantly notice that he wasn't from the area.

23. His usual method of accessing the internet was by tethering his phone to his laptop and taking advantage of the unlimited data package. Unfortunately the data company soon cottoned onto this and thereafter made it a punishable offence to continue to do so.

24. These days in North Korea there are many hidden recording devices present. Therefore one must be extra cautious and only speak when necessary. A poorly phrased comment said in jest could land you in jail for life!

25. I had not played tetherball before, but was excited and willing to give it a try after seeing it on TV. It turned out I was rather good at it, after playing for only ten minutes my opponent withdrew from the game due to fatigue.