Learn English Now

Welcome to Learn English Now. The ability to speak English will be a great blessing in your life. English skills can improve your daily life, help you pursue educational opportunities, lead to better employment, and expand your circles of friends and acquaintances.

EnglishConnect is made up of several English courses. Learn English Now is for novice speakers without internet access. It helps learners build conversational skills through both classroom and at-home study. Speak UP! is used to teach similar skills using classroom and online study. EnglishConnect Intermediate is an online course for learners who have mastered the conversational skills taught at the novice level. It includes instruction in reading and writing in preparation for academic course work in Pathway L. Pathway L Version builds more advanced English skills while helping learners pursue higher education and better employment. These courses also give learners opportunities to learn more about the fundamental teachings of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints if they desire to do so.

This book will help learners during the Learn English Now course. It contains activities for each lesson and other helpful resources. However, learners cannot learn English from this book alone. For this reason, it is important that you practice English diligently in between classes.

As learners and instructors work together in EnglishConnect classes, each experiences the blessings of sacrifice, work, self-reliance, and love. Your positive attitude, preparation, and dedication to these lessons will improve your life and the lives of others.

Best wishes!

FOR INSTRUCTORS

Welcome to EnglishConnect: Learn English Now

Thank you for becoming an instructor for EnglishConnect: Learn English Now. Teaching English will be a wonderful opportunity to serve your fellowmen (see Mosiah 2:17). It will also be a rewarding experience as you see learners' abilities to speak and converse in English improve while they experience positive changes in their lives.

What Is Learn English Now?

Learn English Now has been created to help learners speak and converse in English on a basic level. For this reasons, book sections and activities focus heavily on pronunciation, vocabulary, and the memorization of dialogs (or conversations).

Your role in this course is to model (or be an example) for your learners, to guide them through the book's activities, and to encourage and support them in their learning efforts. Show genuine excitement and support and give appropriate praise to your learners. This will influence and encourage them to keep moving forward, especially during challenging times.

Who Participates in This Course?

Those participating in this course are:

- instructors.
- assistant instructors.
- learners.

Instructors

Instructors are responsible for preparing class materials and guiding learners through the Learn English Now activities. They can also review learners' progress in My English Practice Plan. Instructors encourage learners and praise them for their efforts and progress in learning English.

Assistant Instructors

Assistant instructors have a major influence on the learners' progress. They are especially helpful in small group activities, in which they give learners more personalized attention, feedback, and help with specific English-speaking skills, such as pronunciation and vocabulary.

When learners are not working in small groups, assistant instructors may help the instructors demonstrate a dialog or activity to the class.

Like the instructors, assistant instructors are also to encourage learners and help them succeed in their learning during class time.

Unlike instructors, assistant instructors do not need to prepare a lesson.

Since assistant instructors are to help learners with their pronunciation and other class activities, their class attendance and enthusiastic attitude with learners are essential.

Learners

Your learners will have different motives to learn English. These can include opportunities to get a better education or better salaries or to expand their circle of friends. Become genuinely interested in their motives, and help learners achieve their goals. This will help them through hard times.

How Does This Course Work?

This course is designed to give learners guided practice twice a week and to let them practice on their own in between classes. The recommended practice time in a week should be 10 hours.

Guided practices (classes) take a total of 3 hours per week. Each class is to last 90 minutes. For each class session, use the Learn English Now content for about 70 minutes. Then, for the last 20 minutes, divide the class in small groups (3 to 5 learners) and have them do the following:

- Read and discuss a principle from My Foundation. Use the time at the end of the first or second class to introduce or review My Foundation with the learners. Then use one principle each week. Reading a My Foundation principle can be done at first in the native language. When learners feel more comfortable with English, read it in English.

- Use another resource (childrens' books, the Book of Mormon, or other appropriate material) that will help learners read and pronounce English words correctly. Have learners read their resource with their assistant instructors.

Class time is very important. It will give learners guided practices, a foundation for their learning outside class, and confidence to practice in between classes.

How Can You Be a Good Instructor?

Use this book as the basis of your instruction, and prepare for class:

- Read the materials and make sure you understand them.
- Select activities to do in each lesson.
- Vary your activities.
- Take objects or visual aids that could help learners with the lesson content.

Your preparation time should be about 30 minutes per class.

Use This Book Effectively

This book is divided in modules. Modules have been created to give you and your learners flexibility. Each module typically covers two classes, but it can cover more or less, depending on learners' progress and interest.

Each module has several pronunciation, vocabulary, and language focus activities. Avoid spending one class period doing only activities belonging to one category (vocabulary, for instance). Spread such activities among different class periods to have variety and keep learners engaged in the lesson.

Bring the book to class and encourage learners to do the same.

Important: Module 1 introduces the 60 most common verbs in English. Encourage learners to memorize these verbs at the beginning of the course. Memorizing the verbs will greatly help the learning process.

Manage Class Time

Let learners do most of the talking. They will gain much more from class if they take most of the time to practice. If you notice you are talking a lot, remind yourself to involve the learners more and give them opportunities to speak and practice.

Frequently have learners do small-group activities. They learn the most when they can practice with an assistant instructor.

Spend an appropriate time on each activity. Do not rush or unnecessarily prolong an activity. If you see learners practicing and engaged, let the activity run a bit longer. But if learners are too silent, bored, or tired of the activity, move to a different type of activity.

Estimate activity times. As you start the course, you may want to check the clock at the beginning and end of each activity. This will help you get an idea of how long each type of activity takes. This information will help you estimate the type and number of activities you choose to do in each lesson.

Start class on time. This will motivate learners to arrive early or on time. It is also a reward for those who make the effort to arrive on time. You may start with a Primary or other song that has simple and common English words. Then have a prayer and proceed with the lesson.

Make sure you leave 20 minutes to go over a My Foundation principle or a different activity at the end of each class.

Set Up the Physical Environment

You or a class president should arrive early to set up chairs and tables for learners and assistant instructors. Set them up in groups, so that each assistant instructor is sitting by a few learners. This type of setup will help learners participate more fully in the small-group activities.

Set Up a Proper Learning Environment

Create an environment in which learners feel safe and excited to participate. Have fun; be cheerful; be excited; be optimistic. Show empathy, and compliment learners on their progress.

As learners come into the room, engage them in the learning process. Greet them in English. Ask them small and simple questions appropriate to their level of understanding and communication.

Have assistant instructors greet them as well and talk to them in English. Assistant instructors may also review with learners their My English Practice Plan. Learners may have questions from previous classes or about things that have happened to them since last class. This is an appropriate time for them to ask and receive answers.

When learners make mistakes, avoid embarrassing them. Do not make fun, get frustrated, or highlight learners or their mistakes. If you are not able to work individually with them, help them correct their mistake by going over the mistake as a class, without naming any learner.

Be encouraging, patient, and kind. Learning a language can be very hard for some people. Help learners in their process, and encourage them as much as possible to keep moving forward. Multiple practices and repetition are key to success.

Simplify Your Language

Speak in a way that will help learners better follow what you are saying. Your learners are at a beginning level, so speaking simply, slowly, and clearly will help them understand what you are saying.

- Use short sentences: break long or complex sentences into small and simple ones.
- Use common words: avoid using difficult or uncommon vocabulary. This applies to academic language as well as slang. For example, instead of saying, "Chat with a nonacquaintance," say "Talk with someone you don't know."

Use English as Much as Possible

Learners come to learn English, and they will learn it by hearing and practicing it. Speak as much as you can in English. You may explain the meaning of new words or expressions by:

- Using visual aids such as pictures, objects, or drawings on the board.
- Using gestures, movement, or facial expressions. For example:
 - When teaching personal pronouns, point to yourself when using "I," to you and the learners when using "we," and so on.
 - When teaching about the past, talk in the present tense and then take a step forward and talk in the past tense.
 - When teaching body parts, touch your nose and make class members touch their noses when saying "nose."
 - Smile when saying "happy," and make a sad face when saying "sad."

Follow Guidelines to Translate

There might be times that a brief translation could save time and frustration. Translate to the learners' native language if all of them use the same one. But be careful: do not make translation a habit!

Learners come to learn English, so English should be spoken as much as possible in the classroom. If translation is possible, do the following before translating:

- Explain things in English as much as possible.
- Use gestures or visual aids (see previous section) to explain what you are saying.
- Encourage learners to say what they want with the English they know.

When using translation:

- Make sure all learners understand. If some learners do not speak the language into which English was translated, they will feel left out.
- Emphasize English over the native language. If you need to translate a vocabulary word, say it in English, then translate it, and then say it again in English. Then, explain and say examples of this word in English. This will help learners switch back to English and keep them engaged in their learning.

Demonstrate Activities

Show your learners how activities should be done. A clear demonstration will help the learners know what they need to do to complete an activity. Showing learners will also help them be less nervous and feel more confident in completing an activity. Invite another instructor or assistant instructor to help you demonstrate activities that are done with a partner.

Use a Variety of Activities

Having variety in your activities will help keep your learners engaged in class. As previously stated, avoid doing only one category of activities, such as vocabulary, in one class period. Try to spread them across classes.

Also, involve as many senses as possible to help your learners understand and remember what they did in class. Be moderate in your approach because you do not want to confuse or overwhelm your learners, but using a variety of senses helps them remember. Find activities that connect to one or more senses:

- Visual activities include drawing, seeing a picture, seeing objects, and writing.
- Audio activities include listening to a recording, a movie, a song, the instructor, or other learners.
- Kinesthetic activities include anything that involves a physical movement, such as drawing, writing, pointing, throwing, touching an object, role-playing, and so on.

Check for Understanding

Periodically check to make sure learners understand what you are teaching. Effective ways to check for understanding include:

- Asking learners to do something. For example:
 - If you just taught colors, you may ask learners to point to a green item in the room.
 - Ask learners to explain something to their neighbor.
- Watching for learners' expressions and non-verbal cues. Do they look confused or like they understand?

- Observing several of your learners. Do only one or two understand, or does the majority seem to understand?

End on a Positive Note

Ending class with encouragement and compliments will further motivate learners to keep practicing in between classes and advance their learning.

Have Fun!

Just like learning a new language, teaching it can be exciting and fun. Find ways to make class enjoyable and fun for you and your learners. Playing games and showing you are having fun will make the class environment more conducive to learners' participation and learning.

Thank You

Again, thank you for becoming an instructor for EnglishConnect: Learn English Now. Teaching this course will give you more teaching experience and will be a wonderful opportunity to bless the lives of those in the course. Follow this course's guidelines, seek the guidance of the Spirit, and enjoy being the instructor for this course!

Take turns reading the text below and, as a class, answer the discussion questions.

This course is designed to give you a weekly English practice session, guided by an instructor. This will help you gain confidence about the lesson materials. Class time will also help you hear proper pronunciation and let you ask questions you may have about what is in the lesson. These guided practices will be the basis of your learning throughout the week.

Most of your learning will occur between classes, when you are expected to review and practice the material covered in class. You are also expected to preview upcoming lesson materials. Working on your English between classes will help you memorize vocabulary, remember what you learn, and prepare to speak English. Thus, studying in between classes will be key to your success in learning English.

Discuss: How will class time help you learn English?

Discuss: Why is it so important to regularly practice English in between classes?

As a class, discuss:

- How do you typically learn a new word and what it means?
- How do you typically review and memorize new information (names, addresses, work-related processes or terms, etc.)?
- What other methods do you know that help you to review and memorize new information?
- What resources help you review, memorize, or practice new information (pen and paper, apps, family, friends, etc.)?
- What role does practicing a new word or skill play in learning it? Feel free to share a brief example.

Learning English is very similar to the processes you have just described. To speak and converse in English, you must identify methods that help you to memorize, review, and practice English words and conversations.

You should also preview the vocabulary for the next class during your study time. This means that you should read, learn the meaning of, and become familiar with each word. Previewing the next class's vocabulary will help you use class time more effectively. It will allow you to focus on listening and practicing the new words and on learning related vocabulary presented in the class.

Learning a new language is a process that requires time, patience, and persistence. You may experience hard times, bad weeks, and a sense of failure. You might feel like you have too much to do and that the mountain you are climbing is too steep. However, remember that "to climb the steepest part of the mountain, we approach it one step at a time" (Mary N. Cook, "Never, Never, Never Give Up!" Ensign or Liahona, May 2010, 118).

Remember your goal and stay on course. Be optimistic and do the very best you can. Your efforts will pay off, and little by little you will reach your goal.

Objectives

At the end of this module, I will be able to affirm:

Now I can . . .

Now I know . . .

- 1. recognize some vowel sounds.
- 2. say words in English correctly.
- 3. ask questions politely.

There are several sounds in English that are not commonly used in many other languages. Our goal is to help improve pronunciation. We are teaching learners to recognize and then be able to pronounce these unique sounds using simple words. Do not worry about the meanings of the words at this time.

Module 2

INTRODUCTORY VOCABULARY

ACTING OUT VERB CONJUGATIONS WITH GESTURES

It is very important that all instructors model and regularly use this gesture practice.

Learn and use gestures for the persons and tense conjugation practice. Learners, you should learn and use in the first or at least by the end of the second class the gestures for the persons of "I" (point to self with both hands), "You" (reach out in front of you with one hand open faced and up), "We" (reach both arms and hands in front in an inclusive gesture, "They" (stretch both hands out in front with both hands facing a group of people), "He" (point sideways with hand face down towards a man), "She" (point sideways with hand face down towards a woman), and "It" (point down toward an imaginary cat or dog). As you, the learner, learn the tenses, do so giving the gestures. Put your books down and make the same gestures as the instructor and assistant instructors while you give the appropriate responses. This is very important, so you internalize the communication as your own. Soon, when you hear a simple sentence pattern such as "I write the letter," you will be able to repeat the phrase and then change the verb appropriately when seeing the gesture for "You" or "We" or "They" or "He" or "She" or "It." This is very effective and helps you retain your learning. Remember that a class or train or any singular thing (other than a person) is an "It," but that two "It"s require the conjugation for "They."

Language Focus: 60 Common Verbs

Instructors use the Module 3 language focus for the 60 common verbs. They read the sentences and ask the learners to read with them. Instructors and learners can role-play by showing the action of the verb and motioning to oneself for I, to a man for he, a woman for she, to two people for they, and all as a group for we. Use gestures for the conjugations. Encourage the learners to create some of their own sentences to share.

At this point it is important for instructors to focus on sentences and questions using to do in the affirmative and in the negative. The negative often involves use of the contraction don't for do not. Take some time to teach the contraction form. The activity includes some examples and space below for the learners to use.

Please note that the learners may not understand or easily create full sentences with correct grammar. Help them learn model sentences and questions that they can use in conversations.

Assistant instructors should help the learners become comfortable using to do in questions and answers.

Instructors project the exercise. Have the learners fill in the blanks in their notebooks and then repeat the sentences after the instructor.

The day before yesterday was	Yesterday was	Today is	Tomorrow is	The day after tomorrow is
Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday

Instructors have learners stand in the center of the room and say with them, "Today is Tuesday." Then all step left into the past and say, "Yesterday was Monday." Step further left into the past and say, "The day before yesterday was Sunday." Then take two steps back to the present and repeat, "Today is Tuesday." Then step right into the future and say, "Tomorrow is Wednesday." Take another step right and say, "The day after tomorrow is Thursday." Repeat the whole sequence.

Do the same stepping and repeating process for each of the following time sequences, starting with the center present.:

The week before last	Last week	This week	Next week	The week after next
he was sick.	we were here.	I have a lot of work.	class starts.	the month ends.

The month before last	Last month	This month	Next month	The month after next

* When the verb conveys thought or feeling, one normally uses present rather than present progressive.

Instructors should have fun with this practice by acting out some of these for the learners. Show the action of the verb and motion to oneself for I, to a man for he, a woman for she, to two people for they, and all as a group for we. This gesturing through the conjugations is extremely important to the learning process. Then ask for volunteers while others join in.

Instructors should use this list, including more role-plays, as a review before the next two modules.

City Center

Instructors create a simple map of a town or use the map here (distribute copies or display it on a screen.) Instructors describe how to give directions from one place to another in the town. Learner volunteers give directions to a instructor for how to go from one location to another. Instructors may want to use a laser pointer to show their travel as the class gives directions to a destination. Instructors involve the learners as much as possible.

Language Focus: Phrases for Outside Directions

8. How much does it (cast / cost) to deliver?
9. (Nothing / no thing) within the city limits.

Instructors say one of the two or three alternative words and have the learners identify which word was said. Instructors help learners recognize the difference.

Language Focus: Colors

Instructors point to something in the room and ask the learners to say the color, if they can, in a full sentence.

Language Focus: Practice Long and Short Forms

How high is it? What is the height?

How wide is it? What is the width?

How long is it? What is the length?

How deep is it? What is the depth?

Unit	Abbreviations	Equivalent
1 inch	1 in. 1"
1 foot	1 ft. 1'	= 12 inches
1 yard	1 yd.	= 3 feet
1 mile	1 mi.	= 5,280 feet

Note: When measuring boxes, length is the longer measurement and width is the shorter measurement. Height is always vertical. Depth refers to the measurement extending inside the item from the user's point of entrance, be it vertical or horizontal.

Instructors point to objects in the room and ask the questions. Learners answer the questions.

Module 13

LEARNING ENGLISH FROM FILMS

Learning English from Films 13

(3 classes with subsequent review)

O Objectives Objectives

At the end of this module, I will be able to affirm:

Now I can . . .

Now I know . . .

- 1. identify common verbs in a small video.
- 2. identify commonly used words in a small video.

Many language instructors and learners agree that a very effective way to learn a language is with videos and movies. Films provide easy access to language content and settings. Watching films uses both audio and visual paths to learning language. It presents language in full cultural context with real people and settings, providing a whole-language experience. Both the verbal and nonverbal content are present, focusing the learner's attention on the actors, their language, and their actions. Films lower the learner's affective filter by capturing attention, increasing motivation, instilling self-confidence, and reducing anxiety.

Films allow for a prespeaking or listening phase and some limited reading. When the instructor presents these passive skills first, the learner can ease into the language learning process in preparation for developing the active skills of speaking and writing.

Next to real-life language experiences with native speakers, films provide the best exposure to language in a non-contrived context.

Advance Organizer for Teaching ESL–EFL Using Films

The learning process outlined here is time-tested and effective.

1. Give a brief introduction to the film: title, type (fact, fiction), setting, main characters, several interesting or key points of the story. For the example used in this lesson: President Gordon B. Hinckley tells a story of an older boy and his young companion.

- a. The boys find an old coat and a badly worn pair of shoes by the roadside.
- b. What happens with the shoes?
- c. What is the farmer's reaction?
- d. How do the boys feel?

Explain that the film contains many of the common verbs.

2. Play the film. The example is at <http://www.mormonchannel.org/video/mormon-messages?v=911029440001>.
- a. Ask learners for any new sound, word, phrase, or sentence they heard.
 - b. As learners provide these, the instructor puts them into context, gives a similar word or briefly explains meanings, models them, and asks learners to repeat the words or phrases. This should be a quick activity.
 - c. Replay the film.

Use several of each type of question. Question all main points. Allow learners to ask some of the questions.

Learners respond to “yes” questions on the main points:

Instructor: President Hinckley tells a story? Learner: Yes.

Learners respond to “no” questions on the main points:

Instructor: President Hinckley reads a story? Learner: No.

Learners respond to fade-out questions or statements:

Instructor: President Hinckley tells a . . . ? Learner: story.

Learners respond to inquisitive questions on the main points:

Instructor: What does President Hinckley tell? Learner: A story.

Learners respond to indirect questions:

Instructor: John, ask Mary what President Hinckley tells. John: Mary, what does President Hinckley tell?

Mary: A story.

Instructor: John, what did Mary say? John: A story.

Learners respond to direct commands:

Instructor: John, tell Mary that President Hinckley tells a story. John: Mary, President Hinckley tells a story.

Instructor: Mary, what did John say? Mary: President Hinckley tells a story.

Learners, with instructor’s help, reconstruct a selected part or two of the film:

Do this sentence-by-sentence in the correct order. The instructor prompts as needed.

Learners respond to direct questions based on the story:

Instructor: Where did President Hinckley find the story? Learner: In a book his father had published.

Instructor: What did his family do together? Learner: They sang, prayed, listened together.

Instructor: What stories did his mother read to them? Learner: Book of Mormon stories.

Instructor: How did his father tell them stories? Learner: Out of his memory.

Note: From here on, most, if not all, questions can be asked in past or present tense. It would be good practice to go through the story once in present tense and once in past tense and even to alternate as seems natural.

Instructor: Where are (were) the two boys walking?

Learner: Along a road.

Instructor: What do (did) they find on the side of the road?

Learner: An old pair of shoes.

Homework Reading and Practice

1. Replay film from <http://www.mormonchannel.org/video/mormon-messages?v=911029440001>.
 - a. Give learners a copy of the Homework Learning Activities. Read (normally) each paragraph aloud while learners listen and read the script silently.
 - b. Learners then take turns reading aloud. This should be a quick activity.
 - c. Explain the Homework Learning Activities and assign learners to complete them.
2. Have the learners write a sentence or two as dictated by an instructor. Or, dictate several questions and have the learners write the questions and their answers. The learners' language levels should be accommodated and slightly challenged.
 - a. Ask two or three learners to write their responses on the blackboard during this exercise.
 - b. Walk around and put a check mark above any errors for learners to correct.
 - c. Finally, ask learners to provide answers as needed.
3. Treat each paragraph in the story with the steps in 2.a–c. A long story will take a long time to treat each paragraph this way, so you may choose to only treat a few paragraphs.

- 3 Listen to the film while reading the script below.
- 4 Complete the learning activities below the script.

We sang together. We prayed together. We listened quietly while Mother read Bible and Book of Mormon stories. Father told us stories out of his memory.

I still remember one of those stories. I found it recently while going through a book he had published some years ago. Listen to it.

An older boy and his young companion were walking along a road which lead through a field. They saw an old coat and a badly worn pair of men's shoes by the roadside. And in the distance they saw the owner working in the field. The younger boy suggested that they hide the shoes, conceal themselves, and watch the perplexity on the owner's face when he returned.

The older boy thought that would not be so good. He said, "This owner must be a very poor man from the looks of his clothes."

So after talking the matter over, at his suggestion, they concluded to try another experiment. Instead of hiding the shoes, they would put a silver dollar in each one and see what the owner did when he discovered the money.

So that's what they did.

Pretty soon the man returned from the field, put on his coat, slipped one foot into his shoe, felt something hard, took it out, and found a silver dollar. Wondrous surprise shone upon his face.

He looked at the dollar again and again, turned around and could see nobody, then proceeded to put on the other shoe, when to his great surprise, he found another dollar.

His feelings overcame him.

He knelt down and offered aloud a prayer of thanksgiving, in which he spoke of his wife being sick and helpless and his children without bread. He fervently thanked the Lord for this bounty from unknown hands, and he invoked the blessings of heaven upon those who had given him this needed help.

The boys remained hidden until he had gone.

They'd been touched by his prayer and felt something warm within their hearts. As they left to walk down the road, one said to the other, "Now, really, don't you have a good feeling?"

Past Repeated Actions

The imperfect verb tense is used for actions that were done repeatedly in the past but are done no longer.

Example:

I used to ride my bicycle every day when I was a child. (I am not a child now.)

I used to exercise at the gym every Tuesday.

I used to visit my friends in Georgia every summer.

Past Facts

The imperfect verb tense is also used for facts and generalizations that were true in the past but are not true in the present.

Example:

I used to live in California, but now I live in Utah.

Alicia used to be a learner, but now she has a full-time job.

My sister used to live in Miami, but last year she moved to Boston.

Language Focus: used to

I used to	I used to go to school at the junior college. I _____ (eat) too much.
YOU used to	You used to have blonde hair. You _____ (have) fun playing soccer.
WE used to	We used to see each other often. We _____ (help) each other.
THEY used to	They used to come to watch movies. They _____ (study) together.
HE/SHE/IT used to	He used to help the other learners. She _____ (learn) with fold cards.

Language Focus: used to

1. We used to go to the movies (every Tuesday / one time) .
2. I _____ visit my grandmother (every summer / last night).
3. He _____ in Arizona (next year / as a child).
4. Maria _____ want to be a nurse (when she was younger / on Sunday).
5. David _____ exercise (yesterday / every day).
6. Olivia and Jordan _____ date (a long time ago / last week).

Instructors project the exercise. Have the learners fill in the blanks in their notebooks and then repeat the sentences after the instructor.

Create and share some of your own sentences with the imperfect tense using the words used to and the infinitive of some of the 60 common verbs.

Language Focus: used to

Write sentences using the form used to and the words below.

Write sentences using the form used to and the words below.

1. Kaylee / work at the museum. Kaylee used to work at the museum.
2. Tamara / work / every weekend.
3. We / live near the ocean.
4. They / study math / every day.
5. Ryan and Holly / watch TV / every day.
6. Jeffrey / go to college.
7. David / visit his cousins / once a month.
8. My brother / want to be a pilot / when he was younger.

Review Simple Present and Imperfect Tenses

The simple present tells us facts or generalizations about the present time.

Examples: Today is Thursday.

We live in Utah.

They live in California.

He lives in New York.

I work at a store.

You work at the bank.

She works full-time.

Everyone studies English.

My brother studies mathematics.

You study art.

The imperfect tense tells us that the action was repeated in the past.

Part 1: Imperfect

Part 2: Simple Present

My sister used to live in Florida,

but now she lives in Louisiana.

Language Focus: 60 Common Verbs

Use action verbs from the 60 common verbs in Module 3 to role-play and practice verbs and their conjugations. The instructor demonstrates and then learners also role-play. Show the action of the verb and gesture through the conjugations to describe what you, he, she or we used to do.

Review Simple Present and Imperfect Tenses

1. My mother / live / Dallas // she / Denver
My mother used to live in Dallas, but now she lives in Denver.
2. The Vasquez family / own a restaurant // they / run a bakery
, but now
3. Alicia / study English // she / French
, but now
4. gas / cost one dollar per gallon // it / more than $3 per gallon
, but now
5. I / work part-time // I / work full-time
, but now

(10 or more classes, as needed, with 1 assistant instructor for every 2 learners)

Objectives

Objectives

At the end of this module, I will be able to affirm:

Now I can . . .

- 1. use the quick reference list to practice asking and answering simple questions.
- 2. answer questions about family, home, likes, dislikes, and daily actions and events in the present tense.
- 3. answer questions about family, home, likes, dislikes, and daily actions and events in the past tense.
- 4. answer questions about family, home, likes, dislikes, and daily actions and events in the future and conditional tenses.

Now I know . . .

Notes to the instructor (to be shared and explained to the learners in detail)

The OPIc is a listening and speaking test offered by the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL). It's the gold standard of tests. To help learners prepare to score well, instructors need to review the information on this page with them approximately one month prior to their taking the OPIc exam. With an intermediate or better score, learners will be able to show their certificate to help them get a better job in many fields.

OPIc Preparation

The Oral Proficiency Interview by computer (OPIc) begins with a survey to identify subjects about which the learner has some experience. The actual interview then focuses on these subjects. For example:

- their family
- their home
- the classes they have taken and liked
- the schools they have attended
- the cities where they have lived—make comparisons
- the hobbies or activities they enjoy
- the kind of music they like
- their friends and things they do together
- the foods they like or dislike
- a career they might like to have
- their job

Learners might be asked to describe what these things are like in their home city or country. They might also be asked to compare them with other cities where they have lived or visited. If they do not know much about a particular subject, they should be prepared to respond in an appropriate fashion such as, “I don’t know that much about (living) in (Los Angeles), but I can say that (Dallas is a friendly city).”

Learners should spend approximately one month preparing for the OPIc by describing things and activities (like those mentioned above) in detail, comparing their understanding and experiences from one city or location or friend to another, or from one time in their life to another. They must understand that they will likely be asked to describe an interesting experience on a walk with a friend, a class that they particularly enjoyed and why, their favorite activity or hobby and the favorite activity of their friends, and so forth. The ability to narrate, or recount events using the correct past tense verb conjugations, is important.

OPIc Prerequisites

The learner must qualify to take the OPIc by doing the following:

- Attend at least 80 percent of the EFY Now classes (after including make up classes if needed). Complete the study and practice of the first 16 modules in English For You Now.
- Complete all of the exercises in Modules 1–16..
- Be able to pronounce well all the words in the initial sections of Module 1.
- Be able to read fluently, with good pronunciation, all of the dialogs in Modules 1–16.
- Have mastered the usage in sentences, along with good pronunciation, of the 60 Common Verbs and the various tenses found in Module 17.
- Be able to fluently describe and compare the subjects described above, because some of them are very likely to come up on the OPIc exam. Everything else in these modules will help you prepare for this. This is the most critical part of the OPIc preparation.

The learners should prepare draft responses, which should be reviewed and edited by the teacher or assistant instructor. Then the learners should practice hearing questions on the subjects and giving appropriate responses with good pronunciation. This is critical to their success.

Instructions for introducing the verb chart

Give to each of the learners:

- This sheet with the Quick Reference List.
- The full Common Verb chart, with holes punched for immediate placement in the learners' notebooks.

Practice using the verb chart with the learners:

- Give the learners a verb in English, and then ask them to find the verb on the chart.
- Then give them one of the sample sentences below the verb on the chart. Use one of the easier tenses (such as simple present, simple past, or simple future).
- Read the sentence for the learners, and then have the learners say the sentence with you.
- Next, ask them to find the conjugation that was used in the sentence immediately above on the verb chart.
- Repeat this several times with other sample sentences for the same verb, using increasingly challenging tenses, until the learners know how to use the chart.
- Be creative—the goal is to help learners know how to use the chart.

Supplemental Resource Materials

ACTIVITY IDEAS

Activity Ideas

Activities, especially games, help learners have fun, be more engaged in class, and remember practiced concepts better. This appendix has been created to give you ideas for activities to help learners achieve the above.

Additionally, the activities in this appendix might help you bring more variety to class and increase class energy, as most activities will require learners to move, do something different, and compete with other learners.

Occasionally, you may use some of these activities as a modification (or replacement) of one of the module's activities. You may also use this appendix' activities as the final class activity on the days in which learners are not working on My Foundation.

The activities in this appendix are organized alphabetically, according to the amount of preparation required from the instructor. The activities that require little to no preparation for the instructor are placed first, and the ones requiring more preparation are placed last.

When using these activities, make sure you provide a good environment for learners to enjoy themselves. As usual, pay attention to your learners' needs and interests. Be sensitive and try to get everyone involved. Feel free to adapt activities to your class needs and interests, even create your own. Have fun!

I like people who...

Activity instructions

Rearrange the classroom, having all participants sit in a circle. Have one less chair removed from the circle so that everyone except for one player is seated. The one player without a chair will go to the middle of the circle and will finish the sentence:

I like people who...

As soon as the player finishes the sentence, all those who have the item described will stand up and switch chairs. For example, if the player says: I like people who have black eyes, everybody who has black eyes has to stand up and grab a different chair.

The player left without a chair gets to be in the middle and start another round.

Instructors' preparation

No preparation is required other than understanding the game and knowing how to explain it. Make sure you use vocabulary learners should know and understand.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be studying their lessons and be familiar with vocabulary, expressions, etc. This will be their basis for this activity.

Notes

Instructors and assistant instructors may participate. They should use words that learners would recognize.

Be aware of people who may be older or have disabilities. Find a way to make them legitimately participate in this activity, if you decide to play it. Make sure you do not make them feel uncomfortable.

Charades

Activity instructions

Designate a moderator and divide learners into two teams.

Have the moderator and a learner from one of the teams come upfront. The moderator holds a stack of cards upside down, hiding the word or expression written on them.

The learner randomly selects a card from the stack held by the moderator.

The learner takes a few seconds to think about how to best represent the word (or expression) on the card he or she chose, using gestures. The learner is not allowed to speak or write.

Once the learner starts representing the word, both teams start guessing aloud what the learner is representing. The first team to guess the word (or expression) earns a point.

The moderator should keep track of time, the score, and makes sure the learner does not speak or write. If the learner speaks or writes, his or her team will be deducted one point. After a point is scored, a learner from the other team should stand up and repeat this process.

The team with the highest score wins the game.

Instructors' preparation

Little preparation is required. The instructor may prepare all of the words or expressions, or may ask learners to write them down on pieces of paper, fold them, and return them to the moderator. Vocabulary may come from only one module or from the current and previous modules covered in class.

If you are preparing the cards, make sure you bring them to class ready to be played, so that you avoid wasting class time.

If you prefer learners to write in their words, bring enough paper and pens so that each learner writes at least one word, phrase or expression.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be studying their lessons and be familiar with vocabulary, expressions, etc.

If desired, you may give learners about a minute to review vocabulary.

If learners are writing the secret word or expression, that may count towards their review time.

Notes

Feel free to adapt the game to your situation and to use low-cost or non-expensive resources. If you do not have cards to write the words on, feel free to use pieces of paper and fold them enough so that learners cannot see what is written on them. You may use your hands to hold the pieces of paper and have learners randomly draw one to start a round of the game.

When playing the game for the first time, make sure you give clear instructions. Also, model the game so that learners understand it. Feel free to play one round to model the game. This will help those unfamiliar with the game know how to play it.

Assistant instructors may help keep track of time, scores, and which team first guesses the word(s) being represented.

You may play the role of the moderator, or have an assistant instructor be the moderator. If a learner is really not comfortable playing the game (or has little to low participation), you may ask the learner to help out by becoming the moderator, keep track of time, scores, or which team first guesses the word(s) being represented.

Activity instructions

Divide the class into two teams. Have one of the learners draw a card containing a secret vocabulary word, phrase or expression (found in the module being studied). This secret word can come from any part of the module that has been covered in class.

Give the learner a few seconds to think about how to draw what they read in the card.

On your mark, have the learner draw on the board representing what is on the card. At the same time, start a timer and give one minute to let the learner's team guess (in English) what was written on the card. If the team guesses within the designated time, they earn a point. If the team is not successful, no point is given or deducted.

Repeat the activity with the other team.

The team with the highest score wins.

Instructors' preparation

Little preparation is required. Make sure you have a board in your classroom, something to write on it, and to erase what is drawn. Bring a timer.

The instructor may prepare all of the words or expressions, or may ask learners to write them down on pieces of paper, fold them, and turn them to the moderator. Vocabulary may come from only one module or from the current and previous modules covered in class.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be studying their modules and be familiar with the modules' vocabulary, expressions, etc.

If learners are writing the secret word or expression, that may count towards their review time. You may give learners an additional time (about one minute) to review vocabulary.

Notes

To make the activity more interesting, you may do the following: if a group does not guess what the secret word is once time is up, the other group will have a chance to talk among themselves and state what they think the word is. If the team is correct, it earns a point.

Assistant instructors may participate in drawing the secret word, but not in guessing the secret word.

Assistant instructors may help keep track of time and scores.

You may play the role of the moderator, or have an assistant instructor be the moderator. If a learner is really not comfortable playing the game (or has little to low participation), you may ask the learner to help out by becoming the moderator.

Role-play

Activity instructions

Divide learners into pairs, then give them a situation, such as:

You are meeting a friend. Decide the day, time, and place to meet.

Have learners take 2-3 minutes to prepare the situation and be ready to role-play it for the class —using English words only.

Assign a pair to perform their role-play for the rest of the class. After the role-play, have the class clap at their peers to congratulate them for their role-play. Highlight the good things of the role-play, then, assign another pair to come up and do their role-play. Repeat the process and make sure you have time to see at least three role-plays.

Instructors' preparation

Little preparation is required. Make sure that you give clear instructions and that your scenarios challenge learners, but do not overwhelm them. Feel free to give learners tools to complete the scenarios, such as: Check Language Focus expressions on pages 34-36 to complete the role-play.

Learners' preparation

Some preparation is required. Learners should be studying their lessons and be familiar with vocabulary, expressions, etc. Learners should take 3-5 minutes to prepare their role-plays in class.

Notes

Each role-play should be fairly short, but contain enough to make it meaningful. If a role-play is dragging, feel free to let learners know they have '30' seconds to finish it. If a role-play is too short, ask learners to use more vocabulary or expressions, until you feel they have done something meaningful.

If the class is big, you may divide the class into groups of three or four people. Tell learners that they all should speak about the same amount of time during the role-play. This will help avoid one or two learners overpowering the other group members, and will give all learners equal participation.

Assistant instructors may help learners prepare their role-play, as long as every pair (or team) has equal chance of getting help. Further, assistant instructors may participate in the role-play, as long as they have a minor role in it, and let learners do most (90%) of the talking.

Learners may volunteer to come up front and do their role-play. You may select the volunteers. However, be careful to avoid choosing the same people over and over so that you give equal opportunities for others to participate and practice their English skills in front of the class.

A good addition to the role-play activity is to determine and state a specific number of vocabulary words or expressions to be used in the role-play. These words or phrases should come from the Learn English Now book, and should be from the module currently being studied, though they could also come from previously studied modules.

Assigning a specific number of words, phrases or expressions to be used in the role-play, will force learners to use the module's content. To make all learners participate, you may also distribute pieces of paper to the class and have class members write the module's words, phrases or expressions used in each role-play.

After each role-play, have the class clap to the presenters. Congratulate learners for doing the role-play. Feel free to review the words and expressions used from the modules, especially if you have asked class members to take notes.

Show and tell

Activity instructions

A learner brings an object to class and talks about it to the class. The learner can describe the object and tell how he or she uses it, and why it is important to him or her.

Instructors' preparation

No preparation required other than assigning a few learners to present.

Learners' preparation

Learners should prepare at home by looking for an object they could describe. The object could be common, or it could be something meaningful and personal to them. Learners should prepare their presentation.

Notes

Learners could bring personal objects that are meaningful to them. Encourage learners listening to the presenting to ask questions after the presentation is over. This is a fun activity in which class members can learn more about each other, expand their vocabulary, and increase their English skills.

Instructors and assistant instructors may also present, bearing in mind that they should not take too much time, and they should use words that most of their learners will know.

You may have one learner presenting in one class, or several learners presenting in the same class.

If you do this activity, make sure that throughout the Learn English Now course, you have asked every learner to present, so that all feel treated equally.

An alternative to this activity is for you to bring objects and give them to learners in class. Give learners a few minutes to prepare to talk about the object (what it is, what it is used for, etc.), and have them talk about it to the whole class. If you decide to do this, take the time to think about and bring objects learners can talk about. You may have learners divided into groups to work on describing each object, and present as a group as well.

Another alternative is to have learners bring pictures of them and their families and talk about them.

The presentation could be done in front of the whole class, or in smaller groups, depending on the size of the class, the time you have, your learners' interests and needs, and whether you would like all learners to get to know each other, or prefer to have them work in smaller groups.

If you are doing the presentations for the whole class, try not to have more than five done on the same day, so that all presentations get attention and you have a variety of activities in class.

Activity instructions

Make sure every learner has a full sheet of paper and a pen or pencil. Have learners use their papers horizontally and divide their paper into several columns. The number and name of the columns will depend on the English level the learners are at and what you have covered in class. However learners should always have two columns: Letter (first column) and Score (last column).

The following is an example of column names:

Letter	Name	Place	Verb	Adjective	Thing	Expression	Score

To start playing, have a person (learner or assistant instructor) start saying the English alphabet aloud. Designate another person to say "Stop". Once this person says "Stop", the one saying the English alphabet stops, and repeats the last letter said.

At this point, have all learners fill out each of the columns with a word that starts with the last letter said (except for the Score column), as shown in the next table.

Letter	Name	Place	Verb	Adjective	Thing	Expression	Score
N	Nathan	New York	need	nice	night	nice to meet you

The first one to finish all columns says "Stop", and everyone else stops writing.

The class reviews their lists. For every non-repeated item, a person receives 10 points. If an item is repeated, each person using it receives 5 points.

Have learners sum their points for that particular letter, and have them write it in the Score column. Then, start another round.

After a few rounds, have learners sum up their total number of points. The person with the highest score wins.

Instructors' preparation

Little preparation is required. The only preparation required is to identify the names of each column and make sure that it is something learners can fill in. Also, make sure you bring enough paper and pens (or pencils) for learners to participate.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis for filling out each column.

Notes

Assistant instructors may play, though they will not be able to say "Stop" once they have filled out all columns.

Assistant instructors should also not help learners so that no learner has an advantage over the others. Assistant instructors may observe and monitor learners during the activity.

Impromptu Speaking

Activity instructions

Divide the class into two groups. A team representative comes forward and decides whether to choose a number or let the other team choose a number. One of them chooses a number between 1-20. You read a prepared statement that matches the chosen number. The team representatives have to quickly respond to the statement in a logical and correct way. For example, if you read the statement:

What are your responsibilities?

A team representative could say:

I have to attend class.

If the answer is appropriate, the team representative has given his or her team 45 seconds to say related but different statements.

The team earns a point per correct statement, until time is up.

Send the team representatives back to their team. Have other representatives come up and restart the activity.

The team with most points wins.

Instructors' preparation

Little preparation is required. Make sure you prepare statements that relate to your module's objectives (current and current or past, depending on what you would like to review) and number them.

Also make sure you have enough statements for all learners to participate.

Bring the statements and a timer to class.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis to properly respond to your statements.

Notes

Assistant instructors may help keep track of time, scores, and the numbers chosen to get the initial statement.

If the class is small and assistant instructors wish to participate, they should participate against someone with the same level of English skills. Further, assistant instructors should only participate during the first part of the game (when players respond to the instructor's statement).

Assistant instructors should not participate when the team has to give related statements in 45 seconds.

To add more competitiveness to the game and as English skills allow, you could do the following:

- Ask learners to create a dialog, rather than just give related statements. This would really increase the challenge of the activity.
- After the team has finished making statements for 45 seconds, give the other team a chance to correct mistakes made by the first team.
- Give the other team, the challenger team, the option to steal the points. If the team accepts, the team will have 30 seconds to add related statements to the ones given by the first team. If the challenger team adds the same amount of statements or more than the first team, the challenger team gets a point per statement made, and all of the points from the statements made by the first group.

What do you see?

Activity instructions

Divide learners into pairs or small groups (no bigger than five). Give each group a picture. Ask learners to describe what they see in the picture, using as many vocabulary words as possible. Words or phrases used should be related to the module being studied as well as past modules. Ask learners to be creative and use as many words as possible to describe the picture.

Instructors' preparation

Preparation is required. You will need to look through pictures or images and select those that best apply to what learners are capable of describing. These images should contain vocabulary or expressions seen in the current and past modules.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis to work on this activity.

Notes

This activity might be a good opportunity for learners to review current and previous vocabulary. It can also be a great opportunity for learners to learn new related vocabulary to what they are studying.

As learners describe the picture, you (or the assistant instructors) may ask learners what they can tell about the weather, what objects they see, what colors they see, and the number of a particular item (people, car, tress, etc.) they see. This will help learners practice as much vocabulary as possible.

You may have each assistant instructor bring up to three pictures and work with a small group of learners to have them describe their pictures.

When doing this activity for the first time, do the first picture as a class (it would be best to project this image so that everyone can see it, and have different class members raise their hands to describe what they see.

Wheel of fortune

Activity instructions

Divide the class as evenly as possible into 2, 3, 4, or 5 teams.

On the board draw horizontal lines, each representing a letter of the word the class needs to guess. This word has to come from the Learn English book, specifically, the module the class is currently working on (or a previous one).

Each team will take turns to guess the mysterious word, a letter at a time. Thus, when the team has its turn, it can choose to guess a consonant. If the consonant is in the word, write it in the proper place(s), and give the team a point for every time the consonant shows in the word. Once a team has stated their consonant, it is up to another team to take its turn.

Whenever a team reaches five points, it can choose to either say a consonant or state a vowel. The team will not get any additional points for correctly guessing any of the vowels.

If a team feels confident about knowing what the mysterious word is, it can choose to get its turn at any point of the game and say their guess. If their guess is correct, the team earns 20 points. If the guess is wrong, the team gets a maximum deduction of 10 points (no negative points are given).

Once a team figures out what the mysterious word is, the teams start a new round with a different word.

The team with the highest score wins.

Instructors' preparation

Some preparation is required. The only preparation required is to identify words (phrases, or expressions) that learners would have seen in class. You may decide to only use words (phrases, or expressions) from the module being studied, or, to use words (phrases or expressions) from current and past modules.

Make sure you have a list big enough to give learners a chance to get a good review.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis for asking for consonants, vowels, and ultimately guessing the mysterious word.

Notes

You may use expressions or phrases from the module, to give variety and more chances for teams to succeed.

The amount of teams and team members on each team will vary according to your class size. If possible, try to keep teams small (groups no bigger than five), to increase all learners' participation.

Assistant instructors may help keeping track of time and scores. Assistant instructors may help you prepare expressions, phrases or words for the game. They may actually carry out this activity.

Assistant instructors should not give hints or participate in guessing the mysterious word unless their participation is kept to a minimum (like requesting a specific vowel) and does not give any team an advantage over the other teams. Assistant instructors should not be the ones guessing the word or telling their team what they think the mysterious word is.

Activity instructions

Divide learners into small groups (or in pairs). Give learners reading materials options for them to read aloud. Have assistant instructors be available to answer learners' questions or support them in their reading as needed. Reading aloud appropriate materials will help learners practice their pronunciation, identify vocabulary they already know, learn new words, and develop some reading skills.

Instructors' preparation

Prepare for this activity by looking for material that is both appropriate for the learners' level and to Church standards.

Reading materials include:

- Scriptures: such as the Book of Mormon, Articles of Faith, and Joseph Smith—History (found at the end of the Pearl of Great Price).
- Words of modern prophets: General Conference talks, messages and articles published in Church magazines.
- Other Church publications: such as articles in the Liahona, Ensign, New Era, and Friends magazines.
- Children stories:
 - If you have access to the internet, find children stories online. There are many sites offering them.
 - Libraries, friends, and acquaintance might help you get a hold of children books.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis for being able to read aloud new materials, asking questions, and understanding their readings.

Notes

Assistant instructors may work with learners to help them read and understand their reading. However, assistant instructors need to be careful to let the learner do most of the reading and talking. Assistant instructors may help learners with pronunciation issues, and answer some of their questions.

Children stories, as well as Friends and New Era articles, are a great source of reading. They are typically short, have commonly used words, and are written in a way that is simple to understand them. Also, many of these books have images that can help learners better understand what they are reading. Not every learner might like reading children stories, so it is good to bring a variety of readings so that everyone can find something they like.

The Book of Mormon might be a good choice, especially if class members are familiar with it, and wish to improve their Church vocabulary.

General Conference talks often have stories, and commonly used words.

Articles published in Church magazines are typically shorter than General Conference talks.

Tongue Twisters

Activity instructions

Write a tongue twister on the board. Then, model how to say it. Have learners repeat it after you. If the whole tongue twister is too much for learners, have them repeat a set of words after you, until you finish the tongue twister and learners can say it completely.

After two or three times, start increasing the speed at which the tongue twister is said. See how fast learners can say it correctly.

Instructors' preparation

Find some good tongue twisters to help learners better pronounce their English words. If you are concerned about a particular sound learners need help with, find a tongue twister that will help them better say that sound.

Learners' preparation

No preparation is required for learners.

Notes

Common English tongue twisters are:

- How much would a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood?
- Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers. How many pickled peppers did Peter Piper pick?
- Can you can a can as a canner can can a can?
- I wish to wish the wish you wish to wish, but if you wish the wish the witch wishes, I won't wish the wish you wish to wish.
- She sells seashells by the seashore.
- I saw Susie sitting in a shoeshine shop.

What are they doing?

Activity instructions

Divide learners into pairs or small groups (no bigger than five). Show learners pictures of different people doing different things. Learners should describe what they think the people in the pictures are doing.

Instructors' preparation

Preparation is required. You will need to look through pictures or images and select those that best apply to what learners are capable of describing.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis to work on this activity.

Notes

This activity is helpful to review the 60 common English verbs. Depending on the level learners are at, you may have learners just state a verb, conjugate the verb, or create a full sentence in the present, future, or past tense.

You may also turn this activity into a game by turning the pictures into cards, and giving learners a specific time to go through them. An assistant instructor can help monitor each group's progress. Every time a learner makes a correct sentence of what the people in the cards may be doing, the team earns a point, and another card is drawn to play. When time is up, each team should count the number of points earned. The team with the most points wins.

You may have each assistant instructor bring up to three pictures and work with a small group of learners to have them describe their pictures.

When doing this activity for the first time, model the activity or do the first picture as a class (it would be best to project this image so that everyone can see it).

Activity instructions

Divide learners into small pairs. Give learners a stack of cards facing down, each with a secret word on it, and other related words. The person picking up the card needs to give clues about the secret word to his or her partner, without using any of the related words. Once the peer has guessed the secret word, learners switch roles and start playing with a different card.

Set a timer to an appropriate time for learners to go through the stack. The timing will depend on learners' English skills, and the amount of cards you have provided for them. Tell learners when to start and when to stop.

Once they have stopped, have learners count the number of cards for which they got the correct word. The team that correctly guesses the most amount of words wins.

Instructors' preparation

Some preparation is required. Go through the module's activities and choose words, phrases or expressions that will have been covered by the time the game will be played. Write the secret word(s) on a piece of paper and underneath one to three words that should not be used as clues. The number of words forbidden to be used will depend on learners' English skills and vocabulary covered in class.

The paper could look something like this:

Since learners will want to go through the stack quickly, it is best to use cardboard for the words. However, regular paper should work as well. Feel free to use a quarter (or less) of a piece of paper for each card.

Learners' preparation

Little preparation is required. Learners should be familiar with the vocabulary and items covered in the current and past modules studied. This will be their basis to guess the secret word, phrase or expression.

Notes

Make sure you bring an equal number of stacks of paper for each pair (small group).

When explaining the game, make sure learners understand they cannot repeat cards. Learners will need to put the cards they have gone through in a different place than the stack that they still need to draw to play.

Watch a video clip

Activity instructions

Learners watch a video clip (about three times) that is appropriate according to LDS standards and learners' English skills. As they watch the clip, learners will be looking for specific things as told by the instructor. After learners have watched the video clip, they share their answers with the class and discuss the video clip.

Instructors' preparation

Videos can be a great way to engage learners. It will also help them with their English skills. To select appropriate video clips for your class do the following:

- Make sure the video clips you show are appropriate. Video clips should follow LDS Church standards. Please watch the whole video clip before showing it to the class. This will help you avoid unpleasant surprises.
- Select small video clips. Video clips around three minutes are ideal. Avoid showing clips that run longer than five minutes. You will likely lose learners' attention, and you might even overwhelm them.
- Choose video clips that match your learners' English skills. Video clips should challenge your learners, but should not be too far from their comprehension. Challenge your learners, but do not overwhelm them.
- Look for video clips that match your learners' interests. There are plenty of appropriate videos to choose from. Choose one(s) that match your learners' interests.
- Choose video clips with a purpose. Though a video is often a more relaxing activity, it should still have a purpose. You may choose to show videos that demonstrate cultural aspects of the English culture closest to your native country; videos to review the future tense, to add vocabulary, reinforce a module's objective, etc. Avoid showing a video just because it is a different type of activity. Learners will be able to tell when you are prepared, and will likely be much more engaged if you have chosen a video with a purpose in mind.

The following points outline an effective way to use a video clip.

- Give a preview of the video content. Tell learners what the video is about. You do not have to summarize the video, just tell enough so that learners can get an idea of the video's content.

Example:

The video we will watch is about a New York music executive. He talks about his work, his family, and things he likes to do.

- Ask learners questions related to the video. This will help learners anticipate what they could listen in the video. This will also be an opportunity to help learners review or learn specific vocabulary.

Example:

What words do you use to talk about your family?

- Ask learners to look for specific things in the video. This will help learners focus when watching the video.

Example:

Look for the following in the video:

- o How many children does Ryan have?
- o What is "squash"?
- o How does Ryan describe himself?
- o What did you like about the video?
- Show the video two or three times. Ask learners to focus for general meaning the first time. Then for the second and third times, ask them to focus on answering your questions.
- Discuss questions with the learners. Review learners' answers. Further, you may choose to have learners share something they learned or liked about the video. The latter can turn into a fun and interesting activity as learners might share insights or commonalities shared with the people shown in the video.

Learners' preparation

No preparation is required for learners. Learners should be studying and learning English in between classes. Learners should be familiar with the module's vocabulary as well as modules already covered in class.

Notes

Make sure you have the equipment necessary to show and project the video in class.

The internet is a great resource for finding video clips. Again, be cautious of what you select. Make sure you have watched all of the video before showing it to the class to avoid unpleasant surprises.

I'm a Mormon videos are a great resources for short and appropriate videos.

Consider creating handouts with key vocabulary, or with specific questions for learners to pay attention to while watching the video. This will help learners better prepare to understand the video clip.

If you do not bring handouts, write the questions on the board, so that learners can see and review them as they watch the video. Bring paper for learners to write down their answers.

If the audio clip is too hard to understand, and if close captions are available, consider turning them on when showing the video to the class.

Introduction to Career English

Congratulations on completing the first 17 modules of English For You Now! You are now ready for Career English. You are encouraged to select, study, and practice the modules for the careers of most interest to you, along with the corresponding vocabularies in the back of Career English.

Career English is designed to help you develop the English capacity that will assist you to obtain employment or advance in careers that require English. The careers currently covered are as follows:

- Airlines
- Hotels
- Tourism
- Banking
- Business
- Import and Export

The dialogs for each of these career modules identify a set of business vocabulary in the back of the book that corresponds to that career. In addition, basic vocabulary and basic verb study sections are also included.

Other skills that would be useful for your employment:

Over the last several years, the LDS Church has done studies and concluded that, in addition to English skills, basic working computer skills could help large numbers of our people obtain and improve their employment. In turn, this would allow them to support their families and better serve in the Church in their own countries. Many careers require good working computer skills with Windows and Microsoft Word, and sometimes Excel and PowerPoint are also required. Training courses in such skills are offered by various technical schools and sometimes financed by your government. We encourage you to go to the Self-Reliance Services center for your stake, your country's government sources, and local educational institutions to identify such possible courses in computer skills.

Instructions for Career Module and Vocabulary Practice

Career English modules and materials can be found online at <http://learningenglish.mtc.byu.edu>

Table of Contents

Learners should study and practice the modules and vocabulary for the careers that most interest them. Using the table below, the instructor and assistant instructors ask what careers the learners are interested in studying. Then, they create breakout mini-classes for the learners interested in each career. In these mini-classes, the instructors project or distribute the corresponding modules and practice those modules with the group of interested learners.
