

Shake The Earth: How To Play bass Guitar

Wondering how to play bass guitar? This beginner guide will teach you the fundamentals quickly. We'll cover bass string notes, bass guitar scales, the vital importance of root notes & the only 2 arpeggio patterns you need. Let's do it!

In this free guitar lesson you will learn:

- The role of a bass guitarist
- The all-conquering importance of root notes
- The notes of the bass guitar strings & fretboard
- The 2 essential bass guitar scales & arpeggios
- How to improvise/compose a bass line to play with a chord sequence
- 4 easy ways to sound awesome on bass guitar

How To Play Bass Guitar: Introduction

Once upon a time there were no bass guitars.

If you wanted to be the bass player in a band, it meant lugging one of those huge upright double-basses you see in orchestras and jazz bands to and from band practice.

Then one day, the good folks at Fender saved all our backs and brought out a guitar version of the bass!

Hey presto, it became possible to learn how to play bass guitar.

There are 4 strings on a bass guitar. Each string has a name AND a number.

To learn how to play bass guitar you'll need to know the notes of the strings. The four strings of a bass guitar are tuned the same as the lower four strings of an ordinary guitar.

- The thickest string is the 4th string. This is tuned to E. We often refer to this as the 'low E string'. This is the deepest/lowest bass note you can play.
- The 3rd string is tuned to A, so it's usually referred to as the A string.
- The 2nd string is tuned to D, so it's usually referred to as the D string.
- The thinnest string is the 1st string and it's tuned to G, so it's usually referred to as the G string.

These notes are the same as a standard guitar but they're an octave lower. In layman's terms, this means they sound deeper and lower and.... Well, bassier!

Here are all the bass guitar notes:

OPEN G	G#/A \flat	A	A#/B \flat	B	C	C#/D \flat	D	D#/E \flat	E	F	F#/G \flat	G
OPEN D	D#/E \flat	E	F	F#/G \flat	G	G#/A \flat	A	A#/B \flat	B	C	C#/D \flat	D
OPEN A	A#/B \flat	B	C	C#/D \flat	D	D#/E \flat	E	F	F#/G \flat	G	G#/A \flat	A
OPEN E	F	F#/G \flat	G	G#/A \flat	A	A#/B \flat	B	C	C#/D \flat	D	D#/E \flat	E
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12

As you begin learning how to play bass guitar, just play the 4th string (the E string). As you progress you can start playing on the 3rd string and eventually the 2nd and 1st. But to begin with, stay on the 4th and make things easy!

To learn how to play bass guitar, you need to understand the role of the bass guitarist.

- The bass guitar in a band plays what's called 'the bass line'.
- Lead guitars play a lot of high up trebly stuff and rhythm guitars tend to play chords somewhere in the mid area.
- As a bass guitarist, you fill out the low end and that gives us an overall well-rounded sound.

Your job is to provide a regular and rock solid beat (along with the drummer) that provides the rhythmic foundation of a piece of music.

Some famous/notable bass guitarists are: Suzie Quatro, Kim Deal from The Pixies, Bruce Foxton from The Jam and Flea from the Red Hot Chili Peppers.

Bass guitar for beginners – getting started

The first thing you need to know as you learn how to play bass guitar is root notes.

What's a root note? Well if the rhythm guitarist in our band tells us they're playing a G chord, we need to match that with a G note. That's basically what a root note is.

In this case the G root note is on the 3rd fret on the E string (the thickest string).

G-----
D-----
A-----
E- 3-----

Let's try giving that G note a pluck.

There's two ways we can pluck a bass string. Either using a guitar pick or using the first two fingers of the picking hand.

If we're using a pick, we want to use down and upstrokes to keep a nice, steady groove going on our G note. If we're using the two fingers, we want to alternate between the two in a sort of 'walking' motion on the string.

G-----
D-----
A-----
E--3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-

The two main things to make sure of are that we're playing the right root note for the right chord and that we're playing it in time.

There's lots of different rhythms we might find ourselves needing to play, but for the moment, try counting, "1 and 2 and 3 and 4 and 1 and 2 and 3 and 4 and..." and play the G note at that pace.

Be sure to keep your counting even; don't speed up or slow down mid-count. If you want to learn how to play bass guitar, your timing has got to be impeccable.

How To Play Bass Guitar – Video 1

To learn bass guitar fast, you have to keep things simple.

Even if your dream is to play like Flea from the Red Hot Chili Peppers or Bootsy Collins from James Brown's band, it's best to keep things simple to start with.

Learning how to play bass guitar takes time and you can build up to doing complicated thumb-slap stuff in the future.

Remember that even the funkier of funk bassists have to understand and appreciate the value of root notes.

Now for the next step in learning how to play bass guitar: Let's try adding a couple more roots into the mix.

Let's say our chord sequence is two bars of G, followed by one bar of D and one bar of A minor, playing in a continuous loop.

G | | D | Am |

If you want to learn how to play bass guitar, you must master the major and minor arpeggios. Don't worry, they are both very simple patterns.

For example, here is the G major arpeggio (one of the most common of all):

Take your time and have a few goes at this. This is a crucial pattern for a bass player to know. (You will use this again and again.)

While practising arpeggios, try to make effective use of all the fingers.

If you want to learn how to play bass guitar you have to learn to use all of those digits. Don't just hop around using the fingers that are already strong, we need to get comfortable using all our fingers!

My advice would be to start with the middle finger on the 3rd fret note, then use the index finger for the 2nd fret and the pinky finger for the 5th fret.

Your little finger may not feel particularly strong right now, but that's all the more reason to get using it. Build it up!

Now, once we're confident we can play the G major arpeggio, let's try and put it into action.

Remember, the above is just an example. Try to make the bass line your own. Experiment.

Ultimately, learning how to play bass guitar is about expression. Don't be afraid to be creative.

Try a few different ideas, just remember to stay in time and change chord at the right point.

Here's another video I recorded for you:

Now, let's see what we can do with that D chord.

Here is the D major arpeggio:

```
G-----7-----
D--4-7--7-4-----
A--5-----5-----
E-----
```

You might notice this is the same pattern as the G major arpeggio, but moved to the D position.

Notice that it's the same pattern, but we've just moved the whole thing up a string.

This is an important point!

- The major arpeggio pattern is a MOVEABLE pattern.
- We can play it anywhere and it will always be a major arpeggio.
- What changes the tonality of the arpeggio is simply where we bring it.
- Play the pattern starting on a D note and it will be D major. Play the same pattern starting on a F note and it be F major. And so on...

We can do the same with the D major arpeggio as we did with the G, however, in this sequence we only have one bar of D to play with, so don't get too carried away or you'll miss the change to Am.

Here's an example again:

```

G-----
D-----7-----
A-----2-----5-----5-5-5-5-5-----
E-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-3-----5-5-5-5-5-5-5-5-----

```

As before, this is just an example. Be creative and make the bassline your own. Have a few goes at this and see what you can come up with.

Here's another video:

So what about the Am?

Am, as it's name would suggest, is a minor chord, so we need to use the minor arpeggio which is slightly different to the major one.

To learn how to play bass guitar you must master both the major AND minor arpeggios.

Here is the A minor arpeggio:

G-----
 D-----7-----
 A-----7--7-----
 E-5-8-----8-5-----

With this arpeggio we want to start with our index finger on the 5th fret, then reach up to that 8th fret note with the pinky. We can use the ring finger to play the notes at the 7th fret.

As with the previous arpeggios, take your time and have a few goes at it until you feel confident to start improvising with it.

The minor arpeggio is also a MOVEABLE pattern. We can play it anywhere.

A super-important summary

- If you want to play a bass line over a major chord, notes from that chord's major arpeggio will always work.
- If you want to play a bass line over a minor chord, notes from that chord's minor arpeggio will always work.
- Regardless of which one you use, the root note will always work.

The bass player's golden rule: If In Doubt, Play The Root Note

Once you're ready, as with the G and the D, we want to try replacing one or more of the Am roots with other notes from the A minor arpeggio.

Roots rule. But they can be a bit boring if that's all you play.

2) Try playing along with the song when practicing.

There's no surer way to know if you're in time and in tune than playing along with an original recording. Make sure you can hear both the record and your bass in equal measure, Don't let one drown out the other or it defeats the object.

Learning how to play bass guitar requires lots of practice. This is a great technique for getting the most out of your practice time.

3) When you're not playing, be LISTENING.

From now on, when you listen to music, try paying extra attention to what the bass guitar is doing.

- How is it working with the other instruments?
- Is it always playing the same rhythm they are or is it playing a different but complimentary rhythm?
- Can you hear any of the things discussed in this article going on eg. root notes and other notes from the arpeggios being added?
- Do some bassists play busier bass lines than others?
- Do different styles of music feature different types of bass lines?
- Is the bass guitar more prominent on some records than others?

Learning how to play bass guitar requires you to develop a musical ear.

Asking yourself these sorts of questions should help you understand the role of the bass guitar better and also help you realise what might be expected of you as you embark on your journey to learn how to play bass guitar.

For inspiration/ideas, check out this list the 10 best bass riffs/solos.

4) Learn to read tab carefully and accurately.

If you're looking to do a cover version of a song, you can't go too far wrong by following the tab, so long as it's an accurate tab.

Check the feedback and ratings of internet tabs to help ensure you're using a good one. (There's tons of bad ones!) If something sounds off when you're playing, check that you're definitely on the right fret and the right string.

How to play bass guitar: Slapping and popping.

These are difficult techniques and will be beyond the reach of a beginner. I'm going to mention them here so you're aware of them, but please understand it will take a while before you'll be able to do these!

Learn how to play bass guitar basics first!

Make sure you're comfortable with the earlier exercises before you have a go at these and be patient with yourself. These techniques take time to learn.

- Slapping refers to when we whack the string with the edge of the thumb.
- Popping refers to when we grip a string from underneath and twang it.

These techniques often go together and are very popular in styles like funk.

The best way to try these is with an octave (the first and last two notes of an arpeggio).

Have a go at this exercise. Slap the lower notes and pop the higher notes.

Watch this epic bass solo (at 4mins 10 seconds) for a little inspiration! (The bassist starts off picking, then switches to slapping and popping.)

Don't feel the need to rush yourself through the exercises in this article. Take your time with them. Bookmark the article so you can revisit at your convenience and work through the exercises at a comfortable pace.

If you want to learn how to play bass guitar you should definitely read our article "Guitar Notes Explained: A Guide For Beginners" as it contains TONS of stuff that will help you become an awesome bass player.

Popular Lessons

How To Learn Guitar: An 11-Step Programme For Beginners

10 Easy Songs For Beginners

How To Strum A Guitar

How To Choose The Perfect Beginner Guitar

Guitar Notes Explained: A Guide For Beginners

How To Play Lead Guitar

3 Easy Ways To Play Bm

More Cool Guitar Stuff

Learn about the National Guitar Academy: About Us

Join us on Facebook for daily guitar tips.

Listen to our Learn Guitar Podcast for rapid guitar progress.

Check out our free chord lessons.

Another free guide from your friends at

 National Guitar Academy
Become the guitarist of your dreams