By Jon Sinn

What is Non Verbal Seduction?

- ❑ Non-Verbal Seduction refers to the process of moving things towards sex without words.
- ❑ Included in Non-Verbal Seduction are things like body language, touching, and Spatial Relevance.

Why is Non-Verbal Seduction Important?

- ▣ Non-Verbal Seduction bridges the gap between verbal and physical escalation.
- ▣ By doing the things that subcommunicate sex, you generate tons of Sexual Comfort.

When Do You Start Non Verbal Seduction?

- ▣ Non Verbal Seduction takes on different shapes and forms throughout the process
- ▣ We are going to be using the tools of Spatial Relevance, Touching and Body Language

The 3 Channels Of Non-Verbal Seduction

- 1. Body Language- Including Facial Expressions, Eye Contact, Movement, and specific body language tactics.
- 2. Touching- Including and up to physical arousal.
- 3. Spatial Relevance- Including, back turns, take-aways and cuts ins.

Non-Verbal Seduction Early On...

- ▣ As you're building Sexual Attraction, you want to begin using nonverbal seduction.
- ▣ However you want to be careful about trying to build arousal or get too touchy right away.

Body Language for Attraction

- ❑ Strong Eye Contact on the approach. Break EC to the side.
- ❑ Feet Shoulder Width apart
- ❑ Shoulders relaxed and leaned back
- ❑ Weight resting on your back foot.
- ❑ Slow steady movements.

Touching For Attraction

- ▣ Touch on your opener.
- ▣ Keep Touching playful at first, think pushing her away, flicking her, bumping into her, and touching her between the shoulder and elbow.
- ▣ Try to progress to touching her hand or putting your arm around her.

Spatial Relevance For Attraction

- ❑ Spatial Relevance refers to your movement into and out of her personal space.
- ❑ In attraction we want to first preserve her comfort levels then violate them by getting too close to her when teasing her and then pulling away.
- ❑ I call this The Captain Jack Special Move.

Body Language For Comfort

- ▣ In comfort we want to start to open up more physically to the girl.
- ▣ Here you want to lean towards her, get your bodies physically closer.
- ▣ You want to make her feel like the center of your body language universe.

Touching For Comfort

- ▣ In Comfort, you want to start to build some sexual rapport. This means you want to treat her as if you have already had sex.
- ▣ Things like: Touching her face, sharing drinks, walking holding hands, hugging and ultimately kissing.

Spatial Relevance For Comfort

- ▣ In comfort we want to build a shared space.
- ▣ We want to make sure that we are talking within 6 inches of her face/ears.
- ▣ We also want to make sure that we are causing subconscious touching of skin to skin.

Body Language For Seduction

- ▣ The Key to seductive body language is slowing down and moving with intent.
- ▣ Intent is conveyed through your facial expressions, eye contact and movement.

Touching For Seduction

- ▣ Touching here is to build arousal.
- ▣ Things like: hair pulling, neck biting, kissing her ears and neck, blowing on her neck, scratching her back grabbing her waist, ass, and rubbing her inner thighs.

Spatial Relevance For Seduction

- ❑ Here we want to start coquetting by moving into the woman's space to arouse her and then moving out of her space to push her away.
- ❑ This can be called sexual push/pull
- ❑ The Pulling is arousing and demonstrating sexual intent
- ❑ The Pushing is when you physically push her away or deny her.

Logistics For Arousal

- ▣ Arousal can be built in any environment, but there is a tipping point where arousal become foreplay.
- ▣ This happens anytime there is any physical contact with the arousal areas of breast and vagina.
- ▣ You don't want to start foreplay until you can take advantage of it comfortable with the woman.

Re-Cap

- ▣ We defined Non Verbal Seduction, why it's important, and when to start it.
- ▣ We then guided you through step by step ways to use your body language, touching and spatial relevance to seduce non verbally.
