RESEARCH

My research primarily focuses on stereotypes and discrimination in the context of HIV prevention, sexual wellbeing, and mental health. I am interested in sociocultural factors related to health and healthcare in the Black sexual minority community in particular and the relevance of intersecting social identities. The central aim of my current work is to promote equitable access to HIV pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP) for Black men who have sex with men (MSM) and other socially marginalized groups.

GRANTS/RESEARCH SUPPORT

2016 - 2017 Expanding Women's Reproductive Health Options in Small Urban Areas: Development and Evaluation of a Clinical Implementation Program to Integrate HIV Biomedical Prevention into Reproductive Health Services

Yale University Center for Interdisciplinary Research on AIDS/
National Institute of Mental Health

Funding Mechanism: CIRA Pilot Projects in HIV Prevention Program/
P30-MH062294

Funding Amount: $20,000 (1 year)

PI: Sarah K. Calabrese

Project Goals: To develop and evaluate a program integrating biomedical HIV prevention into women's reproductive healthcare and to pilot test a web-based video approach to introducing PrEP and nPEP to clients

Activities: Execution of all components of the project in partnership with Planned Parenthood of Southern New England, including a multi-level, mixed-methods needs assessment (interviews and surveys); clinical care team training; development of client education curriculum, web-based PrEP/nPEP introductory video, and implementation protocols; program implementation; data analysis; manuscript preparation; and dissemination of findings

2014 - 2018 Intervention to Promote PrEP Awareness and Equitable Prescription Among Providers

National Institute of Mental Health

Funding Mechanism: K01-MH103080

Funding Amount: $633,763 (4 years)

PI: Sarah K. Calabrese

Project Goals: To develop and pilot test a single-session, group-based intervention for healthcare providers to increase their awareness about PrEP, improve cultural competence, and promote equitable access to PrEP for Black MSM and other marginalized groups

Activities: Execution of all components of the research project and training plan, including a mixed-methods needs assessment (interviews, focus groups, and surveys); intervention development and pilot testing; data analysis; manuscript preparation; dissemination of findings; coursework; and professional development activities

2014 - 2015 Unfounded Sexual Stereotypes of Black Sexual Minority Men and Inequitable Access to HIV Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP): Understanding the Psychological Biases Underlying Discriminatory Prescription Practices

Yale University

Funding Mechanism: Fund for Lesbian and Gay Studies Award

Funding Amount: $1,500 (1 year)

PI: Sarah K. Calabrese

Project Goals: To examine the sexual stereotypes faced by Black men who have sex with men (MSM) and the psychological mechanisms underlying clinical bias against Black sexual minority men in the context of PrEP prescription

Activities: Execution of all components of the research project, including data collection and analysis; manuscript preparation; and dissemination of findings

2012 - 2014 Interdisciplinary HIV Prevention Training Program

National Institute of Mental Health

Funding Mechanism: T32-MH020031

Funding Amount: $2,210,757 (5 years)

PIs: Jeannette Ickovics and Trace S. Kershaw

Project Goals: To advance the research skills of developing scientists and prepare them for academic research careers

Role: Postdoctoral Fellow

Activities: Study conceptualization; data collection and analysis; manuscript preparation; dissemination of findings; intervention implementation; grant preparation; coursework; and professional development activities

2012 - 2013 Intervention to Reduce Acute Stress and HIV Risk in Newly Diagnosed Men

National Institute of Mental Health

Funding Mechanism: R34-MH087216

Funding Amount: $728,336 (3 years)

PIs: Nathan B. Hansen and Trace S. Kershaw

Project Goals: To develop a brief, care-based intervention for MSM newly diagnosed with HIV to reduce the acute stress of receiving an HIV diagnosis and reduce sexual transmission risk behavior

Role: Postdoctoral Fellow

Activities: Development of intervention manual and implementation of intervention

2009 - 2011 Cultural Scripts Influencing HIV Prevention among African American Women

National Institute of Mental Health

Funding Mechanism: F31-MH085584

Funding Amount: $61,800 (2 years)

PI: Sarah K. Calabrese

Project Goals: To conduct a mixed-methods study examining the implications of racialized sexual stereotypes for sexual wellbeing among African American women

Activities: Execution of all components of the research project and training plan, including measure development; data collection (focus group, interviews, and surveys); data analysis; dissertation writing; manuscript preparation; dissemination of findings; clinical service; coursework; and professional development activities

2004 - 2008 Contextual Influences on Sexual Risk among Latino Men Who Have Sex with Men

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

Funding Mechanism: R01-HD046258

Funding Amount: $2,806,149 (5 years)

PI: Maria Cecilia Zea

Project Goals: To develop and test a theoretical model of sociocultural, psychosocial, and contextual influences on unprotected sex among Latino MSM in the U.S.

Role: Research Assistant

Activities: Literature searches; survey development; computer-assisted self-interviewing software programming; data analysis; manuscript preparation; dissemination of research findings; and administrative tasks

COMMUNITY SERVICE & CONSULTATION

I have applied my research skills and expertise to several local initiatives aimed at HIV education and prevention. I welcome opportunities to partner with community groups and local organizations to increase public awareness about and access to HIV prevention resources and to translate research into action.

2016 District of Columbia Center for Rational Prescribing (DCRx)
Role: Invited Expert/Consultant
Activities: Contributed to the conceptualization and development of two continuing medical education webinars focused on PrEP

2015 - 2016 Connecticut Department of Public Health
National Institute of Mental Health
Role: Invited Expert/Consultant
Activities: Contributed to the development, delivery, and evaluation of Putting PrEP Into Practice: A Training for CT Healthcare Providers, a continuing medical education training session focused on PrEP

2015 - 2016 AIDS Project New Haven
Role: Volunteer
Activities: Helped organize the New Haven PrEP Rally, a free community education event, and contributed to the development, delivery, and analysis of a health priorities survey for a local church

TEACHING AND MENTORING

Throughout the course of my academic career, I have sought opportunities to teach and mentor undergraduate students, graduate students, and other developing scientists. I have independently instructed undergraduate psychology courses at two different universities, with the goal of cultivating scientific knowledge and interest in human behavior, cognition, and emotion across a broad range of students. As a faculty member of the Yale School of Public Health, I actively involve undergraduate and graduate students as members of my research team, providing one-on-one mentorship and hands-on research experience. I also embrace other opportunities to educate and engage students as a guest lecturer, invited speaker, and member of thesis committees.

CLINICAL TRAINING

I have a strong clinical background in working with ethnically and sexually diverse clientele facing a wide range of social circumstances and mental health challenges. As a clinical psychologist, my understanding of human behavior and my approach to intervention are strongly rooted in cognitive behavioral theory. I also draw upon principles of intersectionality and Black feminist theory in conceptualizing individuals within their broader sociocultural contexts and respecting their unique worldviews. During my graduate training, I pursued neuropsychology in particular, actively seeking opportunities to unite this interest with my passion for HIV prevention research.
