The Official Details

I am a designer specializing in interactive design. Understanding how people interact with the digital environment, everything I create is focused on user experience. I have been a designer for over ten years, working closely with clients to ensure they understand the design strategy and rationale. Along with my interactive design experience, I also have a strong background in print and identity design.

Unofficial Things

I'm a pencil artist turned web designer. I enjoy discussing politics, economic systems and some CSS. Having designed album covers for more than ten years, I also love to listen to and argue about music. Last but certainly not least, I play an unhealthy level of videogames. According to my wife, this will quite possibly be the cause of my death...either directly or indirectly.
