

November 2015 Update

Dear praying friends,

We are welcoming winter here in Labrador with hopes of a much calmer family life and much busier ministry. Since our last letter we traveled to Ontario for a whirlwind three week furlough. We visited eight churches in those three weeks and had only a single day that didn't have some visit or activity on it. We planned the trip to coincide with Thanksgiving so that we could see a lot of family that we might not fit in otherwise. Thank you so much to the churches who generously hosted us and gave support both in dollars and words of strength and encouragement.

Upon returning we gave ourselves just two weeks to pack up our house and move to a rowhouse on the air force base. This has been an adventure with lingering and multiplied illness and two busy toddlers. We are now getting settled in and enjoying the great convenience of living right in Goose Bay. I will be able to take my snowmobile to work leaving Amanda free to join some of the social groups available in town. It has been a long process of finding just the right option to get ourselves right into our ministry area and I believe it has already paid off. Our first Sunday back we had a nice meeting and we are looking forward to holding Bible studies with those interested at our home. I have had several people already ask to visit us here. Prayer requests for the winter include: For souls to be saved and lives to be changed. I have made a couple of very promising contacts since our return, particularly a young couple who seem ready to hear the Gospel.

For a regular group of people to attend both our Sunday meetings and studies in our home.

For the Minion family as they finish deputation and make plans to move here in the spring.

For the paperwork to come through so we can take possession of the future church property.

For Amanda and the baby as they complete the last three months of pregnancy and for her health and grace during the darker months as she deals with seasonal depression.

We thank you all so much for your prayers and support each day.
