

What do we know about the Air face shape?

Air is the element associated with Type 1 and Spring in four type systems.

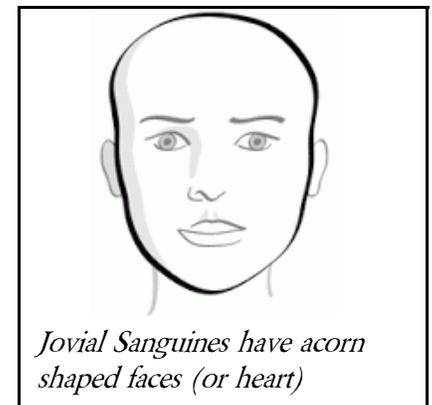

- Caygill (1980): “The face is generally rounded—rounded cheeks, eyes, nose, chin—or it may be heart shaped with pointed chin...dimples.”
- Kentner: Spring is triangular, oblong
- Kitchener: Animated/Bright is circle
- Sinclair Tone I: circle, gentle triangle facing up, star
- Segerstrom (1980) Type 1: "Type Ones look smooth and rounded. Appearing younger than their years, T-1s' faces, cheeks, eyes and figures are predominately curved.
- Wright (1999) Type 1: “round or elfin face, often curly hair, round eyes, usually blue, can also have some green or grey”
- Tuttle (2010) Type 1: “Face shape: circular or heart shaped.”
- NOTE THE VARIETY OF FACE SHAPES ACC. TO SYSTEM

Keep in mind that the element of Air is not used in Chinese Eastern face

Round: A person with a round face is considered to have a more emotional personality.

EXPRESSING YOUR TRUTH

The Greek Humor: Sanguine

“Sanguine (Air): balanced, aesthetic, pleasing, oval or egg shaped face, tapering delicate chin mouth and lips, eyes tend to be brown, almond shaped, hair is usually brown or chestnut, Venusian facial type (associated with Libra). Jovial (Jupiter) subtype can be acorn shaped face, with large forehead and upper face, but small tapering cheeks, chin, mouth and lower face, short and compressed nose, but can also be angular and prominent, like a bird's beak, eye-brows are full and hair is curly or wavy. "The Sanguine iris type is called hematogenic by iridologists. The iris color is usually brown or hazel, and its fibers tightly or densely woven; as the Sanguine is considered to be the most balanced and equable of temperaments in Greek Medicine, so the densely woven hematogenic type is considered to be the most desirable by iridologists.”

Hematogenic eye

Wright and Steiner say Spring eyes are blue.
