

What we do

We help you gather, step-by-step, the information one of our specialist family lawyers needs to advise you on how best to sort out your finances.

Because we make sure everything is in order beforehand, we can get you this expert advice for an affordable fixed fee.

Armed with this advice, you and your ex-partner can have confidence in what you then agree.

So you end up with a fair, legally binding agreement, without expensive and open-ended legal fees or stressful court hearings.

What makes us different?

We get you impartial legal advice

We do more than just make sure that your divorce papers are completed properly. That's the job of online, cut-price divorce services. We go a step further, helping you come to a fair, legally binding agreement on your finances. We guide you, step-by-step, through the routine information gathering work required to get you proper legal advice - cutting out the costs of getting a solicitor to do it for you. As a result you get impartial legal advice for a reduced, fixed cost.

Our unique co-operative service means you can both save on legal costs

Using our co-operative service, you can check and query the figures entered by your ex-partner much like a solicitor would. When you are both happy that everything is listed, we send the information to a specialist family law barrister who will draft an impartial opinion setting out what they think a judge might do if your case went to court. This gives you the comfort that any eventual settlement is informed by specialist legal advice. You also save significant costs as you do not need to use a solicitor charging you for non-expert work you can do yourself.

Unlike mediators, we can provide impartial legal advice

Mediation can be a useful way to resolve any disputes and may be the best route for you. However, a mediator is not allowed to give legal advice so will often have to recommend that you each seek separate legal advice, adding to your costs. Using Intelligent Divorce, you get proper impartial legal advice to help you reach agreement - so you are not left wondering "What might a judge have done?".

"A thoroughly professional, well thought through service."
Mr M.S., London - a user of the co-operative service

"The website was straightforward and easy to navigate. My telephone conversations were friendly, reassuring and extremely helpful."
Mr P. A., Warwickshire - talking about the solo service

What it costs

We provide two levels of service

Solo: use this service if you cannot get your ex-partner to work with you but still want cost-effective legal advice

For £599 + VAT you get:

- access to our website tools
- a personal legal opinion from a specialist family law barrister
- unlimited telephone and email support from our help line

Co-operative: use this service with your ex-partner to reduce both your legal costs

For only £998, or £499 each, (plus VAT & any court fees) you get:

- unlimited help from your dedicated case manager
- access to our unique website tools to help you agree what you own
- a personal legal opinion, based on this information, from a specialist family law barrister
- detailed guidance and useful tools to help you reach an agreement
- a solicitor-drafted consent order ready for court approval
- your divorce paperwork handled and managed for you

Want to find out more?
Call us on 0844 745 6850
All calls are confidential

It costs nothing to get started - visit www.intelligentdivorce.co.uk